Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau will open his B.C. campaign for the Liberals in Memorial Arena here June 2. He will be followed by Conservative leader Robert Stanfield on June 13.

Liberal party workers had called a press conference for 10 a.m. today to make the announcement, but a Vancouver party spokesman beat them to the punch.

Grit candidates David Groos and David Anderson are expected to make statements of the probable impact of their leader's visit anyway.

One Liberal said he had known for three weeks that Mr. Trudeau was heading here, but both parties had been waiting to see who would make the first move.

Arena manager Jack Morgan has been evading questions on political bookings for weeks, and would only say he had dates open between June 1 and 18.

He added that none of the parties had confirmed a booking date.

As soon as the Liberal announcement was made, Conservatives Eric Charman and George Chatterton announced that Mr. Stanfield would be in Victoria for a Memorial Arena rally June 13.

No detailed plans have been announced for the visit of either leader.

Assistant manager of the arena, John Bate, said the building could hold as many as 8,000 people, and loudspeakers could be set up in the parking lot to accommodate any overflow.

Liberal Ian Stewart said Thursday, "We expect at least a capacity crowd. We are going to fill the building. We are determined that all the technical things will be in perfect order and will have a professional engineer on hand to see that the sound system is in top shape."

As soon as his meeting is over, Mr. Trudeau will fly to Penticton and spend the following day campaigning through the interior. He will be back later in June to assist Liberal candidates on the Lower Mainland.

Paris Riots Roar On, Border Tested Today

Police Threaten To Join Strikers

PARIS (CP)—Rioting students battled police in the fire-ridden streets of Left-Bank Paris Thursday night as France's strike-caused crisis continued to flare.

The Latin Quarter was in a state of siege as police chased young rioters through the streets, firing tear gas and brandishing huge anti-riot shields.

Within earshot of the famous Notre Dame cathedral, police trucks fired columns of water at the students who built makeshift barricades and set fire to piles of uncollected garbage.

Seine Bridges Closed

Through the smoke-laden air, students, angrily opposed to President de Gaulle, lifted from one corner to another with the police in constant pursuit. The young demonstrators extinguished street lights but the night was illuminated by the smoky fires which left the normally picturesque boulevards something of a shambles.

Meanwhile, Paris police warned they could not be relied on to act against strikers or serve a regime which failed to respect democratic institutions. In an outspoken communication, unions representing uniformed Paris police said they hoped the government "would not systematically pit policemen against workers fighting for their rights."

If the government failed, the unions "would feel justified in considering the execution of some of their missions as so many questions of conscience."

AIR TENSE

In other parts of the Latin Quarter, students and tourists milled around and the atmosphere was tense.

Meanwhile, changes in the Gaullist cabinet and moves toward social reform were reported imminent but mass strikes were expected to continue until at least Sunday.

A battle developed near the St. Michel Bridge over the River Seine in the wake of a cabinet meeting at which President de Gaulle conferred with his ministers on his plans for dealing with the strike crisis, the gravest of his 10-year-old regime.

De Gaulle is to address the nation in a radio television broadcast at noon EDT today and is expected to announce the decisions at that time. There was no public hint in advance of what he intends to propose.

Germans Plan 'Invasion'

FRANKFURT (CP-Reuters)—West German left-wing students said Thursday they will march across the French border today with Daniel Cohn-Bendit, a leader of Paris demonstrations who has been barred from re-entering France.

Cohn-Bendit, 23, a West German, was barred from France Wednesday after flying to Amsterdam, The Netherlands. The West German Students League announced the march after Cohn-Bendit, known as Danny the Red, arrived here from Amsterdam.

The league said there would be a demonstration today at the University of Saarbrücken, near the French border, and then West German and French students would attempt to cross into France.

POSTS ALEERT

At least 1,000 students were expected to escort Cohn-Bendit in his effort to cross the border.

Cohn-Bendit, who says his aim is the complete overthrow of French society, was born in France but now has West German nationality.

Posts along the French border have been put on alert to watch for Cohn-Bendit.

Cohn-Bendit told a students meeting in Amsterdam Wednesday night he would go back to France within two or three weeks "to continue the struggle against capitalism and the de Gaulle government."

CALL TO CONVERGE

Meanwhile, Belgian students occupying Brussels University called on the people of Belgium to converge on the campus to give them support.

They asked students, teachers and others who were concerned to renounce their Ascension Day public holiday, leave their homes, even in the provinces—and "to come to the university."

About 500 young persons calling themselves The Free Assembly of the 12,000-student university said in a statement they no longer recognize the authority of the university's governing council and are replacing it by a "democratic body elected by the assembly of the university community."

275,000 Acres Burning

Hundreds Flee Alberta Forest Fires

EDMONTON (CP) — The town of Slave Lake, on the southeastern tip of Lesser Slave Lake, was being threatened by a forest fire which had already caused the evacuation of about 300 persons from communities farther along the shore of the lake, 190 miles north of Edmonton.

The fire Thursday night was burning about six miles from Slave Lake at 11:20 p.m. PST. Slave Lake was one of two communities which received the people evacuated from the lakeshore settlements of Widewater, Canyon Creek and Faust. The other was Kinuso.

A bulletin was broadcast from all radio and television stations in the Edmonton area at 10:30 p.m. PST, and 50 minutes later, word was received that the evacuation had been completed.

The department reported 116 fires burning, 19 out of control and nine under partial control.

An estimated 275,000 acres was classified on fire in the province although forest fires do not necessarily burn over whole areas or do not actively burn all at once.

The Lesser Slave Lake area was hardest hit.

Smoke from some of the fires could be seen clearly from Edmonton. The late afternoon sun was blood red and the acrid odor of smoke tainted the air downtown. The fire closest to Edmonton was a small one near Stony Plain, 20 miles west.

Fighting the fires is a force of 4,000 men, including 3,200 on the lines with the rest doing supply duty. Also in use are 300 bulldozers and more than 100 aircraft, including water bombers contributed by four provinces besides Alberta.

The weather forecast gave little hope of immediate relief. The central part of Alberta is to remain hot and dry with the northern section to become warmer.

The Rocky Mountain House-Clearwater district is the other major forest suffering from the outbreak, one of the worst in history. There are 39 fires burning there including a 20,000 acre blaze near Buck Lake, 75 miles southwest of Edmonton.

Yo Ho Ho

GLACIER, N.S. (CP) — Lobster fishermen Steve MacDonald hauled in a potent catch Thursday morning—185 gallons of rum.

The rum, in three 45-gallon drums stamped Bordeaux, France, was taken to the local RCMP detachment, which will try to locate the owner. Police speculate the drums fell off a passing ship.

If the owner can not be found, the rum will be poured down the drain.

Blasts Back Toronto Extortion Threats

Subway Bomber Hunted

TORONTO (CP) — Deputy Police Chief John Murray said Thursday at least one person in Toronto knows the "mad bomber" of the subway and appealed for information before someone is killed.

He said he does not believe the bomber deliberately intends to injure or kill people, but this could happen if he carries out threats of further subway violence in an attempt to extort $250,000.

Four to five sticks of dynamite exploded in a subway station washroom and a bus station waiting room Wednesday night after a week of threats against the life of Ralph Day, chairman of the Toronto Transit Commission. Day and his family are under police guard.

Murray said after a two-hour meeting between district police supervisors and the TTC Thursday there is a possibility there are two bombers. In his telephone threats to Day the man used both "I" and "we."

D. F. Hamilton, a member of the TTC, said police have a tape-recording of the "calculating, cold-blooded voice" of the bomber.

FIRST THREAT

All TTC property has been placed under 24-hour surveillance by 300 policemen.

The first telephone threat was received May 15 when the bomber mentioned two dynamite blasts that had occurred less than 24 hours before.

The caller asked Day for $250,000 and told him to take it to a downtown telephone booth at Yonge and Bloor Streets where he would find instructions. Nothing was found in the booth.

De Gaulle is to address the nation in a radio television broadcast at noon EDT today and is expected to announce the decisions at that time. There was no public hint in advance of what he intends to propose.

Big Quake Rocks All New Zealand

WELLINGTON (Reuters-AP) — A strong earthquake rocked most of New Zealand early today, causing serious damage and injury on the South Island's west coast.

At least one person, a woman, was missing and 15 people reported injured by the tremor, which reached a strength of 6.5 on the Richter scale.

A government seismological observatory spokesman in Wellington said its epicentre was north of the South Island town of Westport.

The quake was felt from Invercargill on the southern tip of the South Island to Whangarai, in the north of the North Island, 800 miles away.

The earthquake struck the town of Inangahua on the South Island, tumbling at least one house into a gorge.

Landslides cut the town's roads and rescue parties went there by helicopter.

In the Westland area, a bridge on a main road was displaced. In another bridge incident, a man was injured when his car hit the sides as the quake struck.

Greymouth looked like a disaster area. Nearly all windows in the shopping area were caved in and shop verandas torn from buildings.

Mystery 'Sniper' Pins 60 Policemen

HOUSTON (UPI) — A short burst of gunfire from an unlimited supply of "ammunition" fought off more than 60 policemen along the Houston ship channel early Thursday. It was finally subdued by a fearless electrician.

Plainclothes and uniformed police, creeping around chemical tanks in the giant industrial complex on the channel, spent the pre-dawn

hours chasing what they thought was someone peppering them with gunfire from atop one of the tanks.

One policeman said he was shot in the heel of the shoe. Another graphically described slugs slamming into a road paved with oyster shells. Police threw themselves to the ground with each loud crack.

The ricocheting of the bullets was clearly audible in the maze of tanks. The threat of an explosion was a distinct possibility.

Fire trucks stood ready and police lobbed tear gas bombs into spots where they thought a sniper was hiding.

"He has been firing at virtually anything that moves," said Harris county deputy sheriff H. C. Gregory. Police Chief Herman Short finally ordered his men pulled back away from the channel to await better light before flushing the villain out of his lair.

But their services were not needed again.

In the first shadowy light of dawn, two sheriff's deputies and four gunsy newsmen, came upon the culprit hiding in a one-inch piece of pipe.

The "shots" were nothing more than the popping noise produced by water dripping through an opening into a conduit pipe, seeping through insulation tape and shorting out a piece of No. 8 electrical wire.

"I just goofed," said electrician R. A. Graves, who was called on to silence the wire. He said he forgot to put a plate on the outside of the pipe which keeps the wire inside waterproof.

City Staff Curious About Job Study

SAUCE FOR THE GOOSE: There is some upset among senior civil employees at City Hall concerning the way City Manager Dennis Young has handled the job study done by Plunkett Ltd.

There seems to be a feeling that the senior staff would be allowed to know how their jobs were classified and how the rates were set. So far there has been no move by Mr. Young to give his colleagues the information they think they have a right to know.

The Plunkett management survey looked into job descriptions and rates paid for the jobs in comparison with other cities. It was understood the staff would be put in the picture, but so far they think they are only being shown the empty frame.

It would be interesting to know if council got the report.

SMARTEN UP: There is much being said about maintaining downtown Victoria as the major shopping centre of lower Vancouver Island. Situated within the downtown area are, of course, some of the oldest and best established retail merchants in the community, as well as major branches of great department stores, which are national operations.

The downtown area is attractive, fairly convenient for local and tourist shoppers and, to date, offers reasonable access.

But — and it is a big but — are the merchants located downtown or even on its borders interested in doing business with their customers or potential customers?

Over the past few months, a good many complaints have come to me from local residents on the type of service being offered the customers by these well known stores. It may be news to the owners or managers of these shops, but the locals are getting pretty annoyed about the aliphed treatment they are getting and the "don't-give-a-damn" attitude displayed by the salespeople.

Among the complaints: a customer bought a metal utility shed and paid the extra sum to have it assembled on his property.

The shed was delivered to his neighbor's garage and couldn't be found by the owner for three days. Once it had been found, the store expert came out to set up the shed. When the instructions were opened, it was shown it took two people to set up the shed, and the owner's wife had to spend several hours helping with the job.

When the job was done, the customer arrived home to find the door was hung the wrong way. He called the store and out came the expert, who did the work and left without putting the door on its nylon roller guides.

Another customer called to tell how she went to a major department store and was halfway through buying an article when the saleswoman's pal came over and engaged in a 15-minute conversation while the customer was kept waiting.

A similar thing happened in another store. This time the customer had to wait nearly 20 minutes while the clerk conducted a personal phone call.

A man went into a public stereo office to get 16 lines typed, after arranging by phone to have the job done. He arrived at 4:30 p.m. but the employees were busy talking and kept him waiting until 4:55 p.m., when they put on their coats and went home, saying it was too late.

He had done business at that establishment for 15 years.

I can't help wondering if these experiences are just isolated cases, or whether they are commonplace. Draw a line if you've encountered any. We won't use your name if we tell your story.

BUAY TIME: The action at Memorial Arena is picking up, what with Stasfield and Trudeau in action during June. Manager Jack Morgan has made a deal with Jack Lyle of Los Angeles to bring in the Beach Boys for a one-night stand July 23.

TUNED IN: Latest addition to the famed National Youth Orchestra from Victoria is Mark Butler. He has been studying in London, where he was auditioned by conductor Brian Friestman.

This is Mr. Butler's fourth year with the NYO. While in Victoria he studied with James Fraser.

back by police hurrying tear gas grenades.

Their numbers mounting by the minutes, the youths dug out cobblestones and ripped away metal tree guards for makeshift weapons. They erected a small street barricade. Sidewalk cafe owners pulled in their chairs and slammed down their metal shutters.

Meanwhile, the Communist-led General Confederation of Labor Thursday night ordered its branches throughout France to start mass demonstrations of the people with the striking workers.

The group is France's biggest labor federation.

REPRISAL

French analysts considered the government, which has already promised academic reforms to meet the demands of demonstrating students, will have to reappraise its entire economic policy.

Reuters news agency quoted official circles as saying de Gaulle's broadcast would be followed by major cabinet surgery, although no ministers were known to have offered to resign.

Mass demonstrations of peasants have been set for today throughout the country in support of demands for higher prices for farm produce and in solidarity with the estimated 8,000,000 striking industrial workers.

PEAK DURING TALK

Paris university students have also called a new demonstration against the government for its ban on the return to France of Daniel Cohn-Bendit, the German-born student leader who met Thursday with West German students in Frankfurt. The new demonstration was timed to be at its peak during de Gaulle's talk.

The first sign of relief in the national paralysis came from workers in seven provincial areas who reported back to work after signing pay agreements with management.

But leaders of the moderate CFDT union confederation made it clear they would not be bought by piecemeal concessions.

NO WORK RENEWAL

They said there should be no hope of a resumption of work when negotiations agreed to by them and the government begin "not even if we obtain some immediate advantages."

What they were after, they said, "is a structural reform of firms which would allow salaried workers to take responsibility."

The big enigma was what de Gaulle will tell the nation. Information Minister Georges Gorse told reporters the president had filled in his ministers on the broad lines of his speech.

Under the circumstances, Gorse said, "you will understand that I cannot reply to your questions."

Political informants were convinced, though, the general will announce a referendum next month to enlist the backing of the French people in a program of sweeping reform. This would be aimed at greater participation of the people in the government; the workers in the running of their factories and in sharing profits; the students in the operation of their schools and universities.

Long Nails Mean Trouble

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: I have quite a problem with my nails and wonder if you could help me. The nails grow out very lumpy, they break and split. The cuticle is red and puffy. — MRS. E.K.

In this particular case, the inflamed cuticle probably is a valuable clue. Disease of the cuticle can cause deformity and irregularity of the nail. The disease could be a fungus infection, ringworm, or chronic bacterial infection of the cuticle. Irritation caused by rough manicuring is also a possibility. However, it is quite pointless for me to try to offer a remedy. Diagnosing the trouble — and thus being able to prescribe an effective treatment — depends on examination of the nails. The only sound advice I can offer is to see a dermatologist (skin specialist) since ailments of the nails are part of that specialty. A fungus medication would be worse than useless if the real trouble is bacterial infection, and vice versa.

I ought — because of so many letters — to discuss brittle nails. It is one of the common complaints of women, but there isn't, to my knowledge, any simple, swift remedy.

Extreme diet deficiency, as well as some systemic diseases, can weaken the nails, but neither of these accounts for most of the complaints.

The biggest single factor, I am convinced, is that so many women cultivate rather long nails — which naturally break more readily than short ones. But another element enters. The nails, like our muscles and bones, gain strength with use, and lose strength with lack of use.

The woman with long, carefully shaped nails takes pains not to exert much strain on the nails. So the nails gradually become weaker.

Then starts the search for some lacquer, some medication, some diet that will make the nails tougher. Taking an envelope of plain, unflavored gelatin is one favorite "remedy". Perhaps the protein in time will help some people. Perhaps it does others no good. In any event, it can't work quickly.

The fact is that people who use their hands for hard work and expose the nails to a lot of pressure and strain seldom have any complaints about brittle or weak nails. (Such people also usually keep the nails cut short.)

A Shau Valley Just Cleared

Viet Reds Sneak Back

SAIGON (UPI) — U.S. military sources said Thursday North Vietnamese troops have reoccupied the A Shau Valley, just one week after allied forces completed a costly sweep through it. The move raises a new threat to Hue.

The 25-mile valley is North Vietnam's main infiltration funnel into South Vietnam. It winds through jungles from the Laotian border toward Hue, the old imperial capital which has been a major communist objective for months.

Allied losses in the 29-day A Shau campaign were significant and contributed to the toll of 599 Americans killed in action last week, making it the second costliest seven-day period of the war for the U.S.

The allied sweep of the A Shau Valley which ended last Friday, was designed to drive North Vietnamese troops from the area and to crush the threat they posed to Hue and coastal provinces — where grain is ripening.

U.S. spokesmen said the campaign cost 142 Americans killed and 846 wounded. The allies claimed 73 communists killed and capture of a huge supply of weapons and road building equipment.

U.S. intelligence officers said they expected the communists to move back into the valley where they would become prey for air strikes by B-52 Stratofortresses and artillery batteries.

"We're going to keep the entire area under interdiction," Lt. Gen. William Rosson told newsmen last Friday when he announced the end of the sweep.

"But, because of the remoteness of the area, extreme difficulty of the terrain and adverse weather, we would not wish to maintain a permanent post there at this time."

U.S. Dead 1,111 Since Paris Opener

From Reuters-AP

SAIGON (CP) — The American military command Thursday announced 1,111 U.S. troops died in Vietnam since the Paris peace talks began — the worst two-week death toll of the war. The total American death toll for the war reached 23,500 more than a quarter of whom were killed this year.

But Communist losses also were heavy. The spokesman estimated 4,765 were killed May 12-18, bringing guerrilla and North Vietnamese deaths to 350,000 since the U.S. build-up in January, 1961.

South Vietnamese headquarters, meanwhile, said 475 government troops were killed last week, 1,476 wounded and 71 missing or captured. The week's previous figures were 675 killed, 1,999 wounded and 71 missing or captured.

Talks' Failure Not Ruled Out

PARIS (AP) — The American delegation now believes the Vietnam peace talks can go on for a long time, but U.S. Ambassador Averell Harriman said Thursday the possibility of failure cannot be ruled out.

The chief U.S. negotiator made it clear he was not predicting failure, but was indicating the talks could not continue indefinitely as a propaganda exercise without getting down to substance.

SAME AS IN PAST
American sources reported the meeting with the North Vietnamese appeared to be settling into the familiar and frustrating pattern of past negotiations with the Communists.

"This sort of thing cannot go on forever," Harriman remarked to reporters as he left his hotel for the U.S. Embassy. "The North Vietnamese are going to have to face up to the realities of the situation."

In a second encounter with reporters later, Harriman suggested that there was a chance of failure in Paris. His remarks seemed to be aimed at countering the statement Wednesday by Xuan Thuy, the chief North Vietnamese negotiator, that if the talks failed the Americans would be responsible before the world.

BOMBING ADVANTAGE
"It's always a possibility, you know that these talks could break down," Harriman told reporters. "The talks can just as well break down on the U.S. side if they (the Americans) think the North Vietnamese are taking advantage of the restraint in the bombing."

The two sides have had four sessions, have talked together 14 hours and have made no progress. Hanoi's attitude is unchanged from April 3 when it accepted contacts "with a view to determining with the American side the unconditional cessation" of all acts of war against the North.

The talks here do not resume until Monday. In the interim, the U.S. team will be in touch with Washington and South Vietnam. Harriman said both have come up with helpful ideas.

Moscow Reported Eager for Peace

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union was reported Thursday to have indicated it would rather have North Vietnam meet U.S. demands for military restraint than see the Paris peace talks collapse.

The impression of the Soviet attitude was understood to have been gained by British Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart in talks with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

The Russians, it was learned, indicated they want to keep the Paris talks alive even while they support Hanoi's position in the deadlocked conference and call the American position unjustified.

It remained unclear, however, just how much leverage the Russians have in influencing Hanoi's decisions on the war.

Stewart and Gromyko are co-chairmen of the old Geneva peace conference machinery for the Vietnam area. But they failed to find anything which that rusty machinery could do at present to help bring peace in Vietnam.

Canada, Ireland Push Nuclear Arms Curb

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Canada and Ireland appealed to the General Assembly again Thursday to grasp the fleeting chance to curb the spread of nuclear weapons.

Canadian disarmament specialist Gen. E. L. M. Burns warned the Assembly's main political committee that the opportunity may be lost if non-nuclear nations insist on nuclear power disarmament commitments as the price of renouncing nuclear weapons.

Irish Ambassador C. C. Cremin said common sense dictates taking the step that is possible now before attempting the more difficult task of dismantling nuclear arsenals.

SECOND TIME
Both nations took the floor for the second time in current debate on the joint U.S.-Soviet draft treaty against nuclear proliferation. Other delegations which asked to be heard today were Laos, Jordan, Ecuador and Guyana.

Gen. Burns also responded pointedly to claims that the non-proliferation treaty would weaken non-nuclear states, hinder their development of peaceful nuclear technology, and be ineffective without France and Communist China.

"What would non-possession states really be giving up?" Burns asked.

"They would be giving up the right to bankrupt themselves in an attempt to create a credible deterrent... and there would be much more political instability in a world in which there would be several more nuclear powers."

"If a majority of the membership of the United Nations refused to adhere to a treaty of non-proliferation, they would certainly lose what moral authority they have to restrict or prevent the use of nuclear weapons in war."

NO SHARING

Burns argued that boycott by France and Communist China need not destroy the treaty, since France has repeatedly indicated it will not share its weapons and there is no evidence the Chinese would act differently.

Finally, he denied that inspection and safeguard systems envisioned in the treaty are any burden on nations such as Canada and South Africa which are major producers or material for nuclear power.

Bermuda Moderates Praised

HAMILTON, Bermuda (AP) — Bermuda's Negro majority has elected a conservative Parliament dominated by whites, rejecting black militants who wanted a complete break with Britain.

In the colony's first election of a autonomous government Wednesday, the United Bermuda Party won 30 of the 40 seats in the House of Assembly. White legislators will outnumber Negroes 24-to-16.

Sir Henry Tucker, leader of the UBP, said the election showed the Negro voter is "moderate, conservative and intelligent."

Sir Henry suggested that the vote was a repudiation of two days of rioting by young Negroes April 25-26 and an expression of concern about its effect on the tourist industry.

Walter Robinson, the PLP leader who campaigned on a platform of getting the British out in six months, said the loss of his seat was due "to the UBP successfully making people believe my party had a part in the unrest."

Please Explain

BOTH LOCAL LIBERAL candidates seem inordinately disturbed by Progressive Conservative leader Robert Stanfield's recent reiteration of his party's views on Canadian unity.

The Liberal Equimult-Saanich hopeful, Mr. David Anderson, recently of Ottawa and points Far East, is so exercised over the matter that he has challenged the Tory candidate, Mr. George Chatterton, to explain the Conservative stand.

Surely before considering entering a debate on Mr. Stanfield's views on the issue it is incumbent upon Mr. Anderson to rationalize his own party leader's statements and actions on the matter he raises.

Along with many other Liberal campaigners Mr. Anderson is attempting to sell Western Canadians and other voters outside of French Canada on the idea that Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau is committed to a vigorous policy of "putting Quebec in its place."

Just how much appeal this bill of goods will have for non-French-speaking Canadians remains to be seen on election day. However, there are some questions that Mr. Anderson may care to answer before that fateful date regarding the peculiar differences between Mr. Trudeau's words and Mr. Trudeau's actions.

Among those which immediately come to mind—and which both Mr. Anderson and Victoria Liberal standard-bearer David Groos may like to explain away—is why Mr. Trudeau's "stamp Quebec" words failed so oddly to tally with his first act as prime minister in awarding 12 out of 24 cabinet positions to Canadians of French descent.

The unhappy pair might also find it an interesting exercise to explain why Mr. Trudeau failed to carry out his threat of breaking off diplomatic relations with France if France repeated the Gabon insult to Canada, France, of course, did. But Mr. Trudeau didn't. Why?

It thus would seem that when it comes to explanations the onus rests considerably more heavily upon the Liberal candidates than the Conservatives to provide them.

Medicare Costs

WHEN MEDICARE comes in on a national scale—if it comes in on a national scale, for the ten provinces only British Columbia and Saskatchewan are ready for it at this time—the cost to the Canadian taxpayers has been estimated at a billion dollars a year. Estimates of the increase in taxes to pay for it range around 12 to 15 per cent.

Because the eight provinces including the two most populous will not participate at the outset, this increase is not immediately in view. But if the national medicare plan survives the forthcoming election and spreads to other provinces, a boost in taxes for all Canadians will be inevitable so that Ottawa can pay its 50 per cent of costs.

This can be regarded as unfair as between the federal taxpayers of the provinces joining the plan and those staying out. But it has been a common thought that in those provinces where national medicare is adopted, the higher taxation will be partly offset for the average individual by a reduction in medical costs.

In the case of British Columbia, however, Provincial Secretary Wesley Black's announcement of arrangements for entry into the national scheme indicates little or no saving in this respect. The rates now charged for coverage in the province's subsidized medical plan, and which will be extended in a year to the private, licensed carriers continuing in operation, will remain unchanged.

The federal contribution of 50 per cent will be only to the cost of physicians' services and not to administrative expense, and there will be a broadening of coverage under the national plan. Yet it will seem to many citizens that some reduction in provincial premiums should be the natural consequence of help from the federal government.

Perhaps at this point the provincial government is being cautious, setting rates more apt to be adequate than inadequate in the knowledge that a decrease is always to be preferred to an increase. In any event a gain to the provincial treasury is a gain to the provincial taxpayer, in one way or another. But a detailed explanation of the financing would be welcome.

Racism Rejected

THE PEOPLE OF BERMUDA have rejected the largely Negro party which called for independence from Britain in the first one-man, one-vote elections in the self-governing Atlantic colony.

Besides the enthusiastic response of voters — 90 per cent of the nearly 21,000 registered went to the polls — the results of the election vindicated the government in the extension of democratic rights. Universal suffrage, some felt, was dangerous.

They had pointed to the experience of Britain's former African colonies, arguing that there was hardly an instance where violence had not followed the granting of independence. The African people were not ready for democracy or self-government, they argued, and neither were the people of Bermuda.

The government, backed by Whitehall, maintained that in a population largely literate, the people had a right to self-determination. In effect, they were giving them the opportunity to decide upon their political future. Independence was theirs if they chose to achieve it by ballot.

The Progressive Labor Party, led by Mr. Walter Robinson, won only seven of 40 seats in the House of Assembly. Mr. Robinson himself was defeated. In an electorate where Negroes predominate — with nearly 65 per cent of the votes — the result was surprising.

But the voters clearly demonstrated they were unsympathetic to Mr. Robinson's policy which promised with independence the expulsion of all white civil servants. They were alienated, too, by the injection of communistic polemics in the election campaign, and by agitators who incited the riots that brought a Royal Navy frigate and a company of British troops to help the 257 police keep order.

As a matter of fact, neither the soldiers nor the bluejackets were called upon. Their presence was enough to discourage the trouble-makers.

Bermuda has turned its back on the racist policy of the Progressive Labor Party and in doing so has demonstrated its worthiness for the responsibilities that are a part of the democratic system.

The Stakes Are Higher

Experience of Earlier Peace Quests Haunt Negotiators at Paris Meeting

By ROBERT STEPHENS, from Paris

JUST as general staffs are always said to be ready to fight the last war, so diplomats are inevitably haunted by their experience of previous peace conferences.

In the case of the American and North Vietnamese now meeting in Paris, there are at least three previous attempts to settle or prevent recent Asian wars which seem to have left important impressions on the minds of each side. They are the talks which led up to the Korean armistice in 1953; the Geneva conference which brought about the Indo-China armistice of 1954; and the conference, also in Geneva, which ended in the treaty recognizing the neutrality of Laos.

The Korean armistice talks went on at Panmunjom for a year and a half while some of the heaviest fighting of the war continued. During that time the Americans had some of their heaviest casualties. The memory of this experience has colored their approach to the present Paris talks with the North Vietnamese. It inclines them to seek a reduction of hostilities on both sides and if possible some kind of cease-fire as the first priority. It also strengthens their determination to obtain some military de-escalation on the side of Hanoi and the Viet Cong in exchange for the present reduction and eventual possible cessation of American bombing of the North.

The North Vietnamese, on the other hand, draw an opposite lesson from the conference which is most vivid to them — the Geneva conference of 1954. Some of their leaders are said to believe that they made a mistake in accepting a military armistice before their political aims had been securely achieved. They are said now to consider that they were tricked into accepting the armistice linked with a final political declaration promising unification of North and South through elections within 18 months. Their assumption was that the political declaration was a face-saving device which would enable the French — the foreign power then involved — to withdraw and leave the whole country gradually to be taken over by the Communist-controlled Viet Minh.

Instead, elections were rejected by the Saigon government of President Ngo Dinh Diem which had established itself with American support. The Geneva declaration which Saigon rejected was not, in fact, formally signed by anyone; the United States merely promised unilaterally not to try to upset its provisions by force.

The only formally signed agreements at Geneva in 1954 were the military armistice documents exchanged between the French and the Viet Minh. These had been negotiated separately from the main conference.

There were also parallel sets of negotiations at the Laos conference in 1962 with the most important talks taking place outside the main conference. These key meetings were between the Laotian princes leading rival right-wing, neutralist and left-wing delegations which led to agreement on a coalition government. This government represented Laos in the final stages of the talks and signed the treaty.

But the turning point which made this coalition agreement possible was the basic policy decision by the United States to accept an internationally endorsed, neutral and unified Laos, however shaky the regime was internally, rather than the virtual partition of the country which would have had to be maintained by American force of arms.

The decision to go for neutrality rather than partition was, it is widely believed, the triumph of the policy of Mr. Averell Harriman, the present chief American negotiator in Paris, as against that of the secretary of state, Mr. Dean Rusk.

***

The reasons for the choice appear to have been both political and military. The logistics of putting a large American force into Laos and maintaining it there would have been formidable. Then there was a real danger that it would have provoked a counter-intervention from China, well-placed on the border to pour in troops and supply them. Finally there was the advantage of an agreement with Russia which at that time, under Mr. Khrushchev, was obviously anxious for a Laos settlement and was thinking of pushing its hands of Southeast Asia altogether.

The North Vietnamese seem to have seen the Laos conference chiefly as a missed opportunity for a peaceful settlement of the gradually escalating civil war in South Vietnam. The Hanoi delegation at Geneva in 1962 tried to get the Vietnam war discussed but the United States and Saigon governments refused. At that time the United States did not want negotiations which would admit a role for Hanoi in a settlement for South Vietnam.

From the American point of view the only connection between the Laotian situation and Vietnam was military, not political. Laos was a potential line of supply from North to South Vietnam which had somehow to be blocked — either by military action or political agreement.

Colonel Ha Van Lau, the deputy leader of the present North Vietnamese delegation in Paris, was at the Laos conference. When it ended, without Vietnam having been seriously discussed, he told a French official: "This means war."

The key questions in the present talks on Vietnam will eventually come down to those discussed at the Laos conference. Is a coalition government possible in Saigon? Will the United States in the end try to maintain partition or accept a movement towards a neutralized, unified Vietnam?

The answers will again depend on a combination of political and military factors. The American military commitment was immensely higher in Vietnam than was the case in Laos. Moreover the strength of the contending Vietnamese forces in purely military terms is much more serious than was that of the Laotian pocket armies.

For this reason, some French experts here believe that the decisive question is the state of the South Vietnamese army which remains the only coherent local force, both political and military, in the South apart from the National Liberation Front.

The United States has committed itself to self-determination for the people of South Vietnam, but there is always the possibility that — like the British in South Arabia — once it is felt locally that the outside Great Powers' real aim is to damage and withdraw, the Americans may find their political allies in Saigon swept away or discredited before their eyes.

Senate Reform Advocated

IN an exclusive interview with The Canadian Press just before he resigned as prime minister, Lester B. Pearson gave his opinions of Canadian politics. Regarding the Senate he said, "I know that in the present Senate there are only two or three who were not active party workers when they were appointed. Non-partisan senators have been offered to two or three others and were turned down. I appointed many Liberals, I know, and by their appointment they became 'party hacks' at once to journalists, however distinguished and successful they may have been."

However, he does not doubt on this issue and get their commitment to take action at the first session of the new Parliament, either to abolish the Senate altogether, or to have it elected in numbers representative of our population, which should be more than half the present number. This is but the first step and we are late in beginning, but we can regain control of our country's affairs if we put the good of the country first and act independently of party.

Independent Schools A Matter of Concern

It was perhaps somewhat easier for the non-Catholic guests at Bishop De Roo's meeting of Thursday, May 16, to appreciate the basic reasons for closing St. Louis College, since they are not emotionally involved on religious grounds. The circumstances were fully explained by the Bishop, as was afterwards reported in your paper.

The position of St. Louis College, however, can be little different from that of most of the unwieldy independent schools in B.C., particularly those in Victoria with one of which I have been concerned for some time.

Since B.C. is one of the few provinces in which the independent schools do not receive some form of financial support from the provincial government, these schools must themselves raise all the funds required to provide for the maintenance, extension and replacement of school buildings, the payment of staff salaries and the purchase of equipment and supplies. In many cases the sole source of income is the school fees paid by the parents of the students.

It is therefore essential, if independent schools in B.C. are to survive without government and/or other outside support, that there should be the closest and most active co-operation between the body responsible for the running and management of each school — whether it be the diocesan senate in the case of the Catholic Schools, or the governors or trustees as for most others — on the one hand, and the clergy and all other interested persons (particularly the parents of the students, and former students themselves) on the other hand. The ultimate responsibility for the survival or extinction of the independent schools in B.C. rests on all of them.

No doubt the Bishop was right in saying that St. Louis College died because of the apathy of those who should have been fighting for its survival, but I believe that his statement could also apply to others among the independent schools in B.C.

Public Urged to Watch Ministers in Action

I was deeply shocked but not surprised when I read of our new minister of highway's encounter with the R.C.M.P. and his comment, "I blew my horn until he stopped. The R.C.M.P. officer asked me what I wanted and I told him I wanted to be the first highway minister in B.C. to stop the R.C.M.P. for a change."

Seldom have I read of such an immature act by a so-called minister of our Social Credit government and it is really tragic that men, such as Mr. Black, make the decisions which will chart the future of our province. If I had taken such action as an ordinary citizen, I should have, very properly, received a ticket for molesting an officer on duty.

This government is dictatorial and pompous and the ministers

'Idea of the Century'

U.K.-U.S.-Canada Trade Pact Vision

By GENE SHEERMAN from London

THREE rejected in determined efforts to enter the European community, Britain today reluctantly is showing interest in a visionary co-operative trade alliance of world-wide potential.

The idea of a North Atlantic Free Trade Area (NAFTA) keynoted by Britain, the United States and Canada, is being seriously entertained.

On both sides of the Atlantic the idea is being studied by economists, businessmen and sympathetic politicians as a means of returning the initiative in international trade to the Anglo-American efforts that spurred it on after the Second World War.

It could, observed one British economist, be "the political idea of the century."

"The NAFTA idea is powerful and logical," says Mr. Leonard Boston, former director of studies of the Institute for Strategic Studies and visiting professor of international relations at Toronto University.

Still, the Labor government has treated the idea with what could be described as reserve amounting to apathy.

Mr. George Brown, the former foreign secretary, went out of his way to dismiss it as unfeasible.

The coolness was at a time when the Labor government, as the Tories before them, was trying to convince France's President Charles de Gaulle that Britain looked to Europe, not America, for sustenance.

Still stinging from the rebuke, Whitehall is not yet in a mood to undertake serious alternative thinking. NAFTA remains only a gleam in some economists' eyes.

There is no doubt, however, that interest is developing. Disillusioned with the dream of a united Europe, with the pound and the dollar subject to severe attack, faced with a resurgence of economic nationalism, both America and Britain are re-thinking the proud postwar prospects of a prosperous and strong Atlantic Alliance.

Kept out of Europe because its world outlook was tied so closely to the United States, Britain learned how closely trade policy is linked to foreign policy.

"The London for Americans," says Mr. Boston, "is that with trading nations markets count. Foreign trade is so small a part of the American economy that they find it hard to believe that great nations will let trade policy dominate their foreign relations."

"But with Britain and such important American allies as Canada, Japan and West Germany, prosperity depends on markets."

"If the United States is going to retain the leadership of these countries it must do more than protect them. It must offer them the kind of world in which their growing industrial strength can find effective outlets."

Though NAFTA has its proponents in Congress — notably Sen. Jacob Javits, New York Republican — there is strong opposition in Washington and in many sections of the United States from those who feel it is time for more protective trade policies.

Americans at home are getting tired of being pushed around for being a rich uncle. The mounting call for protectionist action recalling the days of American isolationism causes considerable concern abroad.

NAFTA would open, not close, trading doors. Its political significance would be a secondary outgrowth of the promotion of worldwide free trade to its members.

***

Those now promoting the idea see it in a different light than the European Economic Community. Unlike the Common Market, it would be global in scope, unlimited by continental considerations, and open to any nation abiding by its rules.

The ramifications are wide-ranging and exciting.

Were NAFTA limited even to Britain, Canada and the United States, it would provide a free trade market far exceeding that of the EEC.

Might this not cause the six Common Market countries led by de Gaulle to find themselves much in the position that Whitehall is with the Six today — on the outside looking in?

Certainly it would raise major political questions, possibly leading to membership of the Six in NAFTA.

At the same time Japan is campaigning for a Pacific free trade area to include North America and Australasia. If this materialized Britain would be isolated from her world markets and the EEC would assume the advantages of an almost local arrangement.

What proponents of NAFTA like Mr. Boston, Prof. James Meade of Cambridge and Prof. Harry Johnson of the London School of Economics want from Britain is a renewed initiative outside the framework of the Common Market.

According to Mr. Boston, some American officials are "embarrassed" by the increasing interest in NAFTA and relieved that Britain remains steadfast in its determination to break into Europe.

Without British interest, the reality of NAFTA is virtually impossible. Proponents in Canada and the United States, particularly the former, are trying hard to generate that interest.

For them, the three countries which have so much in common, including language, would make the perfect foundation for a trade alliance that would dramatically reassert Anglo-American leadership.

Evolution of NAFTA would take many — perhaps 20 — years.

But the seeds are being sown. (Copyright News Service)

Tough Times For Witches

From The Ottawa Journal

In these days of glue sniffers and "pot" smokers the crime of witchcraft has been relegated to television. But a Toronto woman was recently fined $300 for pretending to practise witchcraft.

Seems she tried to cure stomach pains by advising her client to leave an egg and $40 in a shoe. When this failed she took the $40. If her witchcraft was weak, there was nothing wrong with her economics.

Witches have a tough row to hoe. Bats' wings and monkey dust have been replaced by antibiotics. Even children laugh at witches, finding satellites more believable than ladies riding brooms. In more barbaric times witches were locked in stocks or burned at the stake, giving them martyr status. Now they are fined as common cheats.

Witches would probably agree that the magic has gone out of life.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Victoria Day was first observed 66 years ago today—in 1902—46 months after the death of Queen Victoria. The holiday was observed May 24, Victoria's birthday, until 1952 when it was changed to the first Monday preceding May 25, Empire Day was a separate occasion, first proposed in 1896 by the Dominion Education Association as a patriotic festival for children.

First World War: Fifty years ago today—in 1918—Canadian troops destroyed several enemy posts and captured 14 prisoners in raids on German positions; German forces raided British bases near Buecy, southwest of Arras, France. The British steamship Immerdale was torpedoed and sunk off the Irish coast with a loss of 37 lives.

Second World War: Twenty-five years ago today—in 1943—more than 300 Allied planes attacked Sardinia and other formations attacked Pantelleria Island and Italian harbors of San Giovanni and Reggio Calabria.

To Join Peace Talks

Americans Prepare Way For Viet Cong

By FREDERICK NOSSAL, from Hong Kong

The United States is setting the stage for Viet Cong participation in the Vietnam peace talks, and for the eventual formation of a coalition government in the south.

Despite repeated official denials, there have been enough leaks and rumors in the past few days to justify the deep concern being felt in Saigon. If Washington and Hanoi in fact have decided that each side can invite their allies to the peace talks, the Communists of South Vietnam automatically get a place at the conference table.

Vice-President Hubert Humphrey dropped a bombshell at the University of Maine when he spoke of future Viet Cong participation in peace negotiations. "It was Humphrey who first let the cat out of the bag about the agreement in Paris that both sides should have the right to invite to the talks whomever they want."

In Washington, the state department immediately denied that there had been any decision on representation at the Paris meetings.

But discussion of the delicate question obviously was designed to prepare public opinion in the United States for the inevitable.

Even U.S. diplomats in Saigon are agreed that without including in negotiations the National Liberation Front, which controls Viet Cong military operations, there can not be a genuine settlement of the war.

In case the Saigon regime remains adamant that it will never sit down with the NLF, the Communists may attend the talks disguised as the Vietnam alliance of national, democratic and peace forces, a leftist political organization formed earlier this year.

The appointment of Tran Van Huong to succeed Nguyen Van Loc as South Vietnamese prime minister is tied up with the shift in policy positions.

Huong, a coolie's son and supporter of a united Vietnam, may try to pave the way for a compromise in dealing with South Vietnam's Communists.

Contacts Officially Encouraged

U.S. Offers Hand to China

UPI, from Washington

At a time when the United States is conducting delicate talks with North Vietnam, top State Department officials have chosen to encourage development of contacts with Communist China short of establishing diplomatic relations.

Undersecretary of State Nicholas Katzenbach, the state department's number two man, and Eugene V. Roslow, undersecretary of state for political affairs, articulated this policy toward Red China in two speeches this week.

In an address to the National Press Club, Katzenbach disclosed that: "We have informed numerous non-governmental organizations with wish to invite representatives from mainland China to meetings in this country that we have no objection."

"We would also be happy to see exchanges of cultural exhibits and articles."

Katzenbach undertook the restatement of U.S. desire for better relations with Peking following a long period of silence by the Johnson administration and at some instance from the state department's China specialists.

Katzenbach insisted that for the moment establishment of diplomatic relations with Peking was unrealistic because Peking seemed uninterested in expanding contacts with the United States.

of relations would have to be without prejudice to U.S. relations with the nationalist Republic of China on Taiwan.

"The winds of change are blowing throughout the world," Katzenbach said.

"Sooner or later they must blow even over the great wall of China. When they do, if they bring about a Chinese wish for improved relations, the United States will be happy to respond positively."

U.S. Meant What It Said

Europe Finally Gets Troop Cuts Message

By WILLIAM ANDERSON
From Brussels

It has taken six months for European NATO nations to realize that American warnings of military cuts are real and can seriously affect the Atlantic alliance's military shield in Western Europe.

U.S. deputy defence secretary Paul H. Nitze, flashed the red light last December when he told NATO governments some U.S. troops would be redeployed from Europe back to the United States.

Nitze gave what, to many military men, was then a somewhat vague reason—"the U.S. balance of payments."

Since many European financiers last December thought the payments deficit was a purely American problem, there did not seem any good reason for the European military to worry.

The seriousness of the deficit has subsequently become a household topic and European nations—realizing their currencies may stand or fall with the dollar—are hurriedly studying means of helping the U.S. economically.

Most of this promised aid is long-term such as adjustments in tariffs. Thus while waiting for this type of aid, it was natural the United States should look for quick means of cutting overseas expenditure. It was obvious this would have to be in military spending on the European continent—currently enjoying its greatest prosperity.

Europeans did not react immediately when Nitze's warning began to take effect. Six thousand American military personnel have been "redeployed" saving some $75,000,000 a year.

Belgium, Britain and other allies began to strip their forces in West Germany.

But advance notice that a further 27,000 U.S. military and 13,000 dependents will be pulled back has abruptly brought home the gravity of the situation to Europeans.

Coming on the heels of the French military withdrawal from NATO, European leaders now realize their alliance, while still powerful, is not the force it once was.

Failure by the Europeans to increase their share to match the U.S. economies will tilt the military balance in favor of the Warsaw Pact nations without their having to make any corresponding reduction.

Pulsating Stars Mystify Astronomers

Green Men or White Dwarfs?

By BRYAN SILCOCK, from London

To astronomers the most exciting event for many years was the recent discovery at Cambridge University of a group of radio stars ticking away with a regularity that puts terrestrial clocks to shame.

Although still nobody knows what these pulsating stars are they are already being put to good use: at Jodrell Bank, England, Professor Graham Smith has used the peculiar qualities of their signals to measure a quantity of great importance in astronomy—the strength of the magnetic field pervading the Milky Way galaxy.

The results, he recently reported in the magazine Nature, make it look as though earlier estimates were wildly out, by a factor of 10 or more. If they are confirmed in further experiments, astronomers are going to have to do a lot of rethinking, in particular about the cosmic rays from outer space that bombard the earth.

This is only the latest in a whole series of surprises the ticking stars have provided. When they first got on to them the Cambridge team, led by Dr. Anthony Hewish, were faced with a problem unique in the whole history of science: were they in fact picking up signals from intelligent beings on another world?

For a few days they were forced to face the possibility in dead earnest; the facetious name they had given to the source of the signals—LGM for little green men—began to seem less of a joke.

They stopped talking about their discovery openly and asked others in the know to keep quiet. They began to wonder what they should do if their suspicions were confirmed: Publish in the ordinary way? Tell the Royal Society? Tell the Prime Minister?

After they had spent a few sleepless nights, the evidence began to swing in favor of natural causes, but it was an extraordinary dress rehearsal for something that may really happen one day.

Little green men or not, pulsating stars are without doubt the most important thing in astronomy since quasars—the fantastically bright objects out towards the fringes of the universe which, five years after their discovery, are also still a great astronomical puzzle.

It was in fact a search for quasars that led almost by accident to the new pulsating stars (the name pulsar means inevitable).

Last summer a huge new aerial of exceptional sensitivity, covering 4½ acres, came into service at Cambridge. From time to time over the next few months the pen recording the telescope's output produced an odd squiggle on the paper.

Individually the squiggles might have been interference produced by a passing car, but when they began to appear regularly in positions corresponding to a particular spot in the sky the astronomers began to take notice.

They found that the squiggles were due to signals consisting of short pulses, varying in strength but so exactly timed that they are the equivalent of a clock that gains or loses only about a millionth of a second in a year.

This was odd enough, but things began to look even odder when an analysis of the signals showed that they came from an object no bigger than a planet and that the pattern of frequencies in the pulses was just the kind of thing that might be used for communications purposes by intelligent beings.

This was the LGM stage. The astronomers did not immediately jump to this conclusion; they were driven to it by the elimination of other possible explanations such as a spacecraft and by the extraordinary nature of the signals. No other known radio stars behaved in this way; the signals were of exactly the right kind; the power needed to transmit them was not excessive.

However, two new discoveries soon ruled out the LGM, or at any rate made them highly unlikely. The first was the fact that the signals showed none of the characteristics that should have been detectable had they come from a planet orbiting around a star.

The second was the location of three more pulsars. Two of them pulse about 45 times a minute—about the same rate as the original one—and the third much faster, about four times a second. All appear to be a few hundred light years away, making them comparatively close neighbors in our own Milky Way galaxy. Four lots of LGM seemed too much of a good thing.

Where do the signals come from if not LGM? The original theory of Dr. Hewish and his colleagues was a star that was rapidly expanding and contracting. But a star of a very special kind.

Most stars when they burn out become "white dwarfs" in which a mass as great as the sun's is compressed by its own gravity into a body the size of the earth. A thimbleful of white dwarf material would weigh hundreds of tons. A white dwarf would be about the right size for a pulsar, but calculations showed that it would probably pulsate a good deal more slowly.

In theory, though, there should exist an even more compressed kind of star called a neutron star, a thimbleful of which would weigh not hundreds but hundreds of millions of tons. The theoretical rate of pulsation of a neutron star looked more promising. The pulsars may turn out to be the first neutron stars to be discovered.

Since the Cambridge group published its results radio and ordinary telescopes from New South Wales to California have been turned on the pulsars. One of them has been tentatively identified with a peculiar yellowish star visible through powerful optical telescopes, but there is nothing to be seen visually in the positions of the other three.

The theoreticians have been busy too, and have thrown up several explanations besides the one put forward by Dr. Hewish. This is still in the running, but it is beginning to look as though white dwarfs can pulsate faster than people thought and opinion is hardening on them.

However, the matter is still wide open and the process by which the radio waves are produced is still a complete mystery.

B.C. Medicare Talks Today

'Rubber Stamp' Fear Voiced

Major non-profit medical care societies are to meet British Columbia's medical services commission today to discuss implementation of national medical care July 1.

Provincial Secretary and former health minister Wesley Black announced earlier this week that all such societies must come under the commission regulations which were drawn to allow B.C. participation in the national scheme.

Officials of the two largest private non-profit plans in the province said they hope to determine at today's meeting to what degree the commission plans to use its sweeping powers.

***

The officials of Medical Services Association (MSA) and CU and C Health Services were concerned over what autonomy they would be permitted.

"Will societies like CU and C and MSA act as sub-contractors on a government project, with full internal autonomy, or will their boards of directors be reduced to rubber-stamping government directives," asked Herb Jones, MSA executive director.

"If we can't maintain some independence of action in meeting the requirements of our members, it seems hardly worthwhile carrying on as societies. We might just as well let the government do the whole job."

Alliance Call 'Surprising'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Spokesman for two industrial unions reacted with surprise Wednesday to a call for a five - union alliance in contract negotiations this year.

The proposal for a temporary alliance of three pulp and paper unions, the United Steelworkers of America and the International Woodworkers of America was made Wednesday by Del Pratt, regional second vice-president of the IWA.

"It's the first I've heard of it," said Oscar Robertson, vice-president of the United Papermakers and Paperworkers. "I might say it's a little strange to first hear about the proposal from the newspapers."

Pen Baskin, area supervisor for the steelworkers, said his union has always consulted with other unions during contract negotiations in the past.

"But I can't really comment until I know what the IWA is proposing."

WEAKER SPOT

Mr. Pratt made his proposal after stating the IWA is in a weaker position in contract negotiations with the Coast forest industry than it was two years ago.

Less than two weeks ago the IWA ended a seven - month strike in the southern Interior which is estimated to have cut the IWA strike fund from more than $4,000,000 to less than $1,000,000.

"The ship is able to proceed at 12 knots," Strandberg said, "and the plan now is for it to proceed up the coast to the first available drydock for repairs."

There could be a delay in getting the $6,000,000 ship, to be renamed The Wickham, into service on its planned south-eastern Alaska run, he said.

The ship is scheduled to go into drydock at Seattle for modification after it is formally transferred to the state from its Swedish owners.

Under a new schedule released earlier this month, the 363-foot, 1,200-passenger ferryliner is to make its first run from Prince Rupert to Haines, Alaska, starting June 16.

Canned Beer Refunds Starting Soon

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ben Ginter, owner of Tartan Breweries Ltd. of Prince George, said Thursday 10-cent refunds will be included next week in all cases of Tartan canned beer sold in British Columbia.

"If Mr. Bonner's government can refund part of people's property taxes, we can refund some of their beer costs," he said in a telephone interview from Winnipeg.

He was referring to a B.C. cabinet order which recently increased the price of canned beer to $2.73 for a 12-can case compared with the $2.63 for 12 bottles of beer.

Mr. Ginter said at the time his brewery did not want the increase. The large Coast breweries, which have just started selling canned beer, said the increase would cover higher costs of canning beer.

All Coast breweries now are selling canned beer. The Prince George brewery has been selling canned beer for some time.

Mr. Ginter said he plans to insert the 10-cent refund in each case produced by the brewery starting next week.

He made the comments after completing arrangements with the Manitoba Liquor Board to sell canned beer in that province.

Barmen Threaten Shutdown

VANCOUVER (CP) — Beer parlor employees said Wednesday they have countered a lockout threat with a plan to shut down nearly all city hotels.

James Morrison, president of the Vancouver local of the Beverage Dispensers' Union, said that under the plan his local will merge with the city local of the Hotel and Restaurant Employees' Union.

The merger would legally permit hotel service workers to join a strike by tapmen and waiters in beer parlors and cocktail lounges.

The British Columbia Hotels' Association, negotiating with the beverage dispensers in 11 city and North Shore hotels, announced Tuesday it has served a lockout notice on the tapmen and waiters.

The association has accepted and the union rejected a conciliation officer's recommendation of a 55-cent hourly increase over three years on existing rates of $2.35 hourly for tapmen and $2.15 hourly for waiters.

The union is seeking a 75-cent hourly increase for tapmen and a 50-cent hourly raise for waiters, over two years.

Rocked in Infancy

Republican Party Bows In With Nine Men, No Funds

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Republican Party of Canada, making its debut in federal politics, has been rocked in its infancy by a lack of support in every department — money, votes and even candidates.

Gerard Goejeun, a 43-year-old Vancouver lawyer who heads the party, originally planned to run 200 candidates across Canada in the June 25 federal election.

At last count he had rounded up six, but one says he has dropped out.

Barbour's friend Lambert said: "I'm too busy running my store to run for office. I had to quit, even though I had been nominated."

The party was founded two years ago by British Columbia lawyer Kenneth Barbour. He had lived three years in Los Angeles and Seattle areas and felt Canada should have a party similar to those in the United States.

Mr. Barbour, 41, merged with another independent group called the Free Trade Party in April, 1967. The head of the Free Trade Party was Mr. Goejeun. Mr. Barbour and Mr. Goejeun described themselves as "Liberal drop-outs" when they merged, but the marriage was short-lived and Mr. Barbour quit the group a short time later.

Mr. Barbour described himself as a nationalist and advocated a "protection of consumers act" and disclosure of interest rates by finance companies.

He sought constitutional reform that would give more importance to Canadian citizenship.

"Most immigrants have to wait five years before becoming Canadians but the British can move right in and vote or get a job with the civil service," he said. "We should be like the U.S. and put all our immigrants on the same basis."

Although he supported the U.S. political system and chose the name Republican, similar to one of the two major American parties, Mr. Barbour said he was in no way connected with the U.S. party.

Mr. Goejeun contested a provincial byelection in the Cariboo riding in 1966 and received 62 votes.

His party seeks a Canadian constitution, with the Senate elected rather than appointed. It would involve compulsory arbitration and favors right-to-work laws providing workers join the union within 30 days of being hired.

It would fix provincial and federal elections every four years.

Leonard Sparckman, who carried the Republican banner into Tuesday's Vancouver South provincial byelection, mustered only 48 votes, almost 10,000 behind winner Norman Levi of the New Democratic Party.

Mr. Goejeun said the party now expects to field a total of nine candidates. In addition to himself and five others in B.C., he said two will be nominated in Montreal and one in Edmonton.

"We hope these nine will bring some more, but we have no money," he said.

Non-Nuclear Defence Stressed by Trudeau

WINNIPEG (CP) — Canada must emphasize the defense of North America over Europe without the need for nuclear weapons on Canadian soil, Prime Minister Trudeau said Thursday.

He told a question-and-answer session at a Canadian Club luncheon it is not technologically necessary to have nuclear missiles in Canada. That protective armament could be based in the U.S., Canada's NORAD ally.

Trudeau said there is nothing moral or immoral about this approach. He was only concerned about the danger to peace. Canada opposed proliferation of nuclear weapons.

SIMILAR THEME

He gave no indication of the future of Canada's two Bomarc nuclear missile sites, at North Bay, Ont. and La Macaza, Que.

On a similar theme at a press conference earlier, Trudeau said that Europe no longer needs Canadian "military might" to defend itself.

However, a total withdrawal from the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, in which Canadian ground and air forces serve, would be bad.

NEEDED AS COUNTER

It would lead to the dissolution of NATO, when it was still needed as a counter to the Warsaw Pact.

A Canadian withdrawal would also be labelled as an isolationist move. And there was a need for political contacts with Europe to offset Canada's heavy involvement with the U.S.

He reaffirmed his earlier stand favoring a "drastic reassessment" of Canada's military role in NATO. Canada would be served better by emphasizing continental defense, an area in which it must play an active part.

SOME SAY NEEDED

If missile war occurred, it would be fought over Canadian air space. Canada should be in a position to have some say in continental defense with the U.S.

He did not seek political withdrawal from NATO, although it might be done away with some day, possibly by mutual declaration with the Warsaw Pact countries.

In Melfort, Sask., former Progressive Conservative leader John Diefenbaker said in an interview Prime Minister Trudeau's stand "will be interpreted everywhere . . . that we intend to desert our responsibilities in Europe. It will have an adverse effect in Germany and in the other countries of NATO."

NOT DEAD

"Communism isn't dead; Communism is advancing gradually and definitely. For Canada to make even the suggestion from the lips of the Prime Minister is dangerous nonsense on his part."

Trudeau said he stands by the law and there would be no occasion for any other party to change the plan. Parliament would not sit in time to make changes in the law after the June 25 election before it takes effect.

Without mentioning Conservative leader Stanfield, who has promised to make the plan more acceptable to the provinces, Mr. Trudeau said: "No party and no politician should be believed if he says he will do something about medicare."

GIVES NO EXPLANATIONS

"The cabinet goes its merry way, with no explanations and no statement of policy," Mr. Stanfield said.

managed on bluff and pretence," Mr. Stanfield said in his sharpest attack yet on Liberal financial and economic policy.

Text of his speech was released to the press before delivery.

Mr. Stanfield said the government is short of cash. Cash resources had declined to $356,000,000 from $1,200,000,000.

But Prime Minister Trudeau and Mr. Benson showed "the most casual unconcern."

of the government, the way in which the prime minister and his colleagues try to ignore the problem, only serve to undermine an already strained confidence in the government of Canada."

The government was borrowing money in Germany and the United States and Mr. Trudeau had made an off-the-cuff remark at Kitchener, Ont., that Canada would go to the European market for more money.

"Off-the-cuff remarks by the prime minister are no substitute for disclosure of our economic situation or for a frank declaration of economic policy."

"The apparent unconcern of the government, the way in which the prime minister and his colleagues try to ignore the problem, only serve to undermine an already strained confidence in the government of Canada."

Full Disclosure Demanded

Stanfield Flays Grit Financing

CALGARY (CP) — Progressive Conservative Leader Stanfield Thursday night called for "full disclosure" of Canada's economic situation by the government.

He said Finance Minister Benson's promise of rigid spending controls is hollow, insincere and political pretence.

He said in a speech at Jubilee Auditorium that Mr. Benson is as irresponsible as finance minister as when he was president of the treasury board when he had put on a "charade of bogus budget cutting."

"He (Mr. Benson) still thinks the nation's economy can be

Invader Band Captures Haiti Village

PORT-AU-PRINCE (AP) — Fifteen to 20 members of an invasion force that landed in Haiti Monday have taken over a small village about 25 miles east of their landing point near Cap-Haitien on the north coast, a government source said Thursday.

He said a mixed force of Haitian army troops and militiamen reported they were surrounding the village. Observers believed the invaders might have been attempting to escape into the Dominican Republic, about 30 miles to the east, but army officials would not comment.

NORTHERN PART

The northern part of this Caribbean republic was isolated by communications and travel restrictions. Port-au-Prince, about 85 miles south of Cap-Haitien, was calm. Two small tanks and an anti-aircraft gun on the lawn of the capital's presidential palace were the only signs of unusual military precautions.

Haiti's strong-man president, Francois (Papa Doc) Duvalier, whose palace had a near miss in an aerial bombing attack that preceded the invasion, declared earlier Thursday that loyal forces had "completely smashed" the invaders, believed to be 35 to 50 Haitian exiles.

BEFORE UN

Duvalier hints he will bring before the United Nations Security Council an accusation that the United States and Britain allowed their territories to be used by Haitian exiles to launch bombings and an invasion against Haiti Monday.

In a telephone interview from Port-au-Prince, Duvalier said: "I have on hand all the data necessary." But he refused "for reasons of state" to name specific countries at this time, and did not make clear whether he would do so before the Security Council, expected to take up Haiti's complaint soon.

Official Haitian sources claim one of the two B-25 bombers which bombed Cap-Haitien and landed an invasion force there left Melbourne, Fla., made an intermediate stop, and then proceeded to Cap-Haitien.

At Melbourne, the control tower said it had no record of it, but a private aviation firm said a B-25 left Sunday morning, supposedly for Lufkin, Tex., for repairs. The Federal Aviation Administration office at Lufkin said no such plane was there.

Haitian officials contend the U.S. not only allows the exiles to operate freely in the U.S., but permits them to acquire planes and other equipment and broadcast threats to invade Haiti and overthrow Duvalier.

INAGUA ISLAND

They said Haitian exiles used Great Inagua Island, in the British Bahamas, as a concentration point for planes and arms to attack Haiti.

Data on board a B-25 bomber captured by Haitian government forces at Cap-Haitien "gave very important information, leaving no doubt about its point of departure," Duvalier said.

The state department said Wednesday it has no knowledge of any use of U.S. territory for the attacks.

Hibs Draw Without Parachutes

LAGOS (AP) — A Biafran broadcast said Thursday that Britain sent 70 paratroops disguised as the Scottish Hibernian soccer team to help the federal Nigerian army fight the secession in the Eastern region.

The Hibernians, who said they were in the country for three matches, drew 1-1 Wednesday night against the Nigerian national team in Lagos.

No parachutes were in evidence.

Talks Resume

TRAIL (CP) — Talks between locals of the United Steelworkers of America and Cominco Ltd. resumed to seek a new contract for the one that expires June 30.

Peace Talks Open

Nigeria, Biafra Agree on Point

KAMPALA, Uganda (Reuters) — Peace talks opened Thursday between federal Nigeria and secessionist Biafra with both sides agreeing on the need for a ceasefire in their 11-month-old civil war.

In speeches at a public opening session, the federal side said it wants discussions first, then a ceasefire. The Biafrans, however, said an immediate cessation of fighting should be the first step to peace.

Both sides pledged to try to end the war which has torn Africa's most populous country, caused thousands of casualties and produced large numbers of refugees.

TEAM CHIEF

The Nigerian team's leader, Chief Anthony Enahoro, commissioner for information, said it is "running away from the problem" to suggest a ceasefire before discussions of the issues involved and conditions for an end to hostilities.

Nigeria's solution for peace is preservation of one Nigeria and an end to Biafra's secession, Enahoro said.

THREE STEPS

Biafra's chief delegate, Chief Justice Sir Louis Mbanefo, proposed three steps toward peace. There were an immediate cessation of fighting; immediate removal of the economic blockade against Biafra and withdrawal of troops behind pre-war boundaries.

He said it is futile to try to keep Nigeria one country and that "to force Biafrans back into the federation would be like forcing the Jews who fled to Israel back to Nazi Germany."

As the two sides came to the conference table, federal forces were in control of most main Biafran centres.

Reports of a China Creek staking rush preceded increased trading in Hogan shares on the exchange Thursday. Normally a quiet trader, Hogan climbed from 26 cents to 57, then settled back to 39 cents in late morning trading.

IT BEATS ME

By Jim Tang

It wasn't a sadistic streak, as news-editor Dave Brown might suspect, but just ordinary curiosity which prompted the research which confirmed the suspicion that there has been little in the annals of frustration to match what has been happening to the Pittsburgh Pirates this season.

Careful followers of major league baseball will have noted that this season has been featured by standout pitching which has resulted in an amazing number of one-run and extra-inning decisions. This has been particularly true of the National League, which had 87 of its first 190 games — just about 46 per cent — decided by the narrowest of margins.

It follows that there isn't one of the 10 clubs which hasn't suffered from misfortune in this kind of competition, but none has been as snake-bitten as the Pirates, who ended the longest pennant drought in league history — 33 years — by winning in 1960. But nothing that happened to them in that lengthy empty stretch could possibly match what has taken place in the first six weeks of the 1968 season. It's something that in fiction could probably have been matched only by the Marquis de Sade.

On the bottom of the deck as of this morning, the Pirates have been beaten by one run in 13 of their 20 defeats — four times by 1-0 — and had lost five other games by two runs. But putting it in capsule form doesn't begin to tell the story.

It started on opening day, April 10, in Houston with the Astros scoring three times after two were out in the ninth to pull out a 3-4 win. On April 20 in Los Angeles, the Dodgers scored three runs in the ninth for a 3-2 decision and then came back in Pittsburgh on April 22 to score three times in the last inning after two were out for a 5-3 win. The last two runs came on a home run by Zolito Versalles, batting .166 at the time.

In between those three heart-breakers, the Pirates, now 5-5 instead of 9-1 or 10-0, lost a 1-0 game to the San Francisco Giants with the only run scoring on a balk and were beaten, 5-2, when the Giants scored three times in the eighth.

That's just a start. On April 26, home runs by Orlando Cepeda and Tim McCarver gave the St. Louis Cardinals a 2-1 win; on April 27, five errors produced as many unearned runs as the Cardinals won, 7-5; on May 2, a home run by Ernie Banks gave Chicago Cubs a 1-0 win and on May 3, the Phillies scored after two were out with the bases empty in the ninth inning for a 3-2 decision.

The following day produced the classic of the season. Leading, 2-0, starting the ninth inning in Philadelphia, the Pirates got singles from their first two batters. Then Manny Mota hit into a triple play and the Phillies scored three times in their last turn on two singles, two errors and two bases on balls, the last coming with the bases loaded and the score tied.

Although they lost twice to Atlanta Braves, 4-2 and 2-1, when three singles in the ninth inning broke a tie, it seemed that it was all over as the Pirates took to winning the close ones themselves and went five for seven to get to 14-13. But they lost, 6-1, to the Cardinals on May 13 and had a scoreless streak extended to 23 innings on May 15 when the Cardinals again won, 1-0, on Julian Javier's first home run of the season.

They blanked the Cardinals the next day but then lost, 3-2, to Cincinnati Reds, who went on to sweep the series, 8-3 and 9-3, in the only two games which the Pirates have lost by more than two runs.

Even that couldn't last. On Monday, utility-infielder Ed Charles hit two home runs as the Mets took a 2-1 victory and on Tuesday, Chuck Hiller made a throwing error in the 17th inning which gave the Mets a 4-3 win.

While Stargel did something about it Wednesday with seven runs batted in for the difference in a 13-6 rout of the Cubs and there is a suspicion that the moisture in Chicago which washed out last night's scheduled game didn't all come from the skies. But when manager Larry Shepard dries his eyes he'll note that his club is only five games from the lead and only three games out on the losing side. This story could have its last chapters written by Burt L. Standish.

Old Stylers Win Boxla Opener

Six unanswered goals in the last quarter brought Victoria Old Stylers from behind and gave them a 13-8 victory over Nanaimo O'Keefe's Thursday night as the Vancouver Island Senior Lacrosse League opened its season at Memorial Arena.

Victoria plays Nanaimo O'Keefe's on Saturday night in a 15-7 victory over Red Lion Inn.

Nanaimo in the second game of the schedule. Port Alberni Barclays, fourth team in the league, open their season at Nanaimo against the Luckies on Wednesday night.

Charm Dillon, who finished with five goals and an assist, and Keith Lawrence, who had three goals and an assist, led the Old Stylers in their fourth-quarter comeback. Both scored twice in the final 15 minutes of a rough game.

The clubs split six goals in the first quarter but O'Keefe took the lead with three of the five second-quarter goals and maintained their one goal edge in the third quarter.

Emil Wegwitz, Ed Steele, Al McLean, Jerry Bains and S. Walker got the other Victoria goals. R. Sandnes and D. Polz each scored twice for the Up-Islanders, who also got single goals from K. Henderson, T. Kease, K. Manns and D. Thien.

A single by John Russell, a double by Dave Morgan and an error accounted for the winning run in the fifth inning as Orphans defeated Independents, 3-1, Thursday in a Senior Amateur Baseball game at Layritz Park.

Brian Craig's home run in the seventh inning was the insurance run for the winners who scored their first run on three first-inning singles.

Independents scored their run in the fifth inning on a single by Craig Lawrence and two Orphan errors.

Three Winners Show Traces Of Medication

BOSTON (AP) — Phenylbutazone, a pain-relieving medication which cost Dancer's image a victory in the Kentucky Derby, was reported Thursday to have been found in winners of three races at two Massachusetts horse racing tracks last Saturday.

Larry Lane, secretary of the state racing commission, said that a urinalysis showed traces of the medication also known as butazolidin and bute, in Sporty Jay, winner of the first race at Suffolk Downs May 18.

Berkshire Downs stewards reported a finding of a "drug the nature of butazolidin" in Nashua Breeze, winner of the first race at the track last Saturday, and in We Salute, winner of the 10th race.

The stewards suspended Fred Elliott of Lakeville, trainer of Nashua Breeze, which is owned by his wife, Barbara.

Edward E. Hess III, 24, trainer of We Salute, of Lancaster, Pa., also was suspended pending a hearing by the stewards today.

Hess pleaded not guilty in Hancock, Mass., district court Thursday to a charge of illegal possession of a hypodermic needle. He was released on $500 bail.

A hearing on the Sporty Jay case also was scheduled for today.

'Bellies Nip Shamrocks On Parnell's Late Goal

WESTERN DIVISION
VICTORIA ..... 1 1 1 1 1 1
New Westminster ..... 1 1 1 1 1 1
Portland ..... 1 1 1 1 1 1
Next game: Tomorrow—Vancouver at Portland.

NEW WESTMINSTER
A power-play goal by Paul Parnell with less than four minutes left gave New Westminster Salmonbellies a 13-12 decision over Victoria Shamrocks in a National Lacrosse Association game played here Thursday night.

It was the second defeat, both by one goal, for the Western Division leaders, now two points ahead of the Salmonbellies, who broke a three-way tie to take the runner-up position all to themselves.

UNWIN PERPLEXED
Last night's result kept Victoria-coach Dave Unwin perplexed. Although he feels his club has so far not come close to potential and is making far too many errors, the Shamrocks have shown an ability to bounce back in winning three of their five games and just missing in the other two.

"I don't think we got more than a quarter of the face-offs, we were bad again on the loose balls and our checking was not what it should be," Unwin said after the game.

Unwin was also a little unhappy over three disallowed goals, all called for crease infractions.

"Two of them might have been right but the third one wasn't a good call," he said.

EFFECTIVE OFFENSE
Despite their mistakes, the Shamrocks stayed close with an effective offence and in a game in which there was a two-goal spread only once and the score tied 10 times, they had a one-goal edge with just more than eight minutes left.

They were led on attack by defenceman Ted Liebhich, who returned to the lineup after missing the Wednesday night game the clubs played in Victoria, and Bill Munroe, who made his 1968 debut on Wednesday.

Liebhich, best of the Shamrocks, scored four goals and Munroe also scored four times, twice on power plays, and had an assist.

Shamrocks led, 5-4, at the end of the first period but trailed, 8-10, starting the third.

Liebhich's fourth goal tied it at 10-10.

Portland and Seattle tied at 10-10 in the fifth inning, then Portland scored three runs in the sixth to win, 13-12.

Victoria's 13th, by Parnell, was scored with two minutes left in the game.

Ken Alexander put Shamrocks ahead with an unassisted goal at 11:53 but Ken Henry tied it again and Parnell produced the winner with Reg Foster serving a penalty at 16:04.

The veteran, who wound up with three goals and four assists, was playing the point on the power play. He took a pass, moved out and cut between the two front defenders to beat Barry Forbes.

Forbes stopped 33 shots while Les Norman and Charlie Scrivner, who shared the goaltending job for Salmonbellies, stopped 24 between them.

San Francisco Giants ended a month-long tenure by St. Louis Cardinals, taking advantage of misuses by the Atlanta Braves to move into first place in the National League with a 5-4 victory.

Coupled with the 3-2 loss suffered by the slumping Cardinals against Los Angeles Dodgers, the victory gave the Giants a one-game lead over the defending champions, who had been on top since April 20 and had several times threatened to pull away from the pack.

RED-HOT RACE
Results tightened the closest league race in years with only five games separating the Giants from the last-place Pittsburgh Pirates and none of the 10 teams more than four games out on the losing side.

Ron Hunt, who led off with a single and moved up two bases on a sacrifice bunt and a fielder's choice, broke a 4-4 tie in the ninth inning when he scored on a passed ball.

The Giants twice took two-run leads, scoring twice in the third inning when Dick Dietz doubled in both runs after a two-out error by Deron Johnson and twice in the seventh on a double by Ty Cline and a sacrifice fly by Jim Hart.

BRAVES RALLY TWICE
Joe Torre led the Braves back each time. His third-inning home run got them started back and he tied the score at 4-4 in the eighth inning with one of his three singles.

In their first real slump of the season, the Cardinals lost for the seventh time in eight games when Bob Bailey's two-out single in the 11th inning plated the fleet Willie Davis.

Davis opened the inning with a double, rightfielder Al Spizio just missing a shoe-string catch, and was bunted along by Len Gabrielson. Ron Fairly was intentionally walked and Tom Haller fouled out before Bailey delivered.

DEFIED 'RULES'
The Dodgers then protested their lead in the St. Louis half of the inning as Los Angeles manager Walter Alston defied the unwritten rules by putting the potential winning run on base.

Alston ordered Orlando Cepeda walked with a man on second base and two out, and the move paid off when reliever John Purdin got Phil Gagliano on a fly ball to centre field.

Rain washed out the other two scheduled National League games and one of two American League games.

RESUME CHASE
In the American League game played, Cleveland Indians resumed their chase for first place by trouncing California Angels, 9-2, behind the steady pitching of Sonny Siebert.

Siebert, now 6-2, drove in two runs with a single and got home-run help from Max Alvis, Jose Cardenal, Tommy Harper and Jose Vidal.

Result moved the Indians within a game and half of the leading Detroit Tigers.

Toronto Gets Pilote For Pappin
TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Maple Leafs Thursday acquired veteran defenceman Pierre Pilote from Chicago Black Hawks in a straight player deal for right winger Jim Pappin.

The 38-year-old Pilote spent 13 years with the Black Hawks and won the James Norris Trophy three times as the National Hockey League's outstanding defenceman.

He is one of the NHL's highest scoring defencemen, with a lifetime record of 71 goals and 40 assists.

BOUNCED AROUND
Pappin, 28, bounced around between Toronto and Rochester Americans of the American Hockey League for about five years before winning a regular spot on the parent club in 1966-67. That season, he scored 21 goals and added 11 assists and played a key role in helping the Leafs win the Stanley Cup.

Early last season, Pappin went into a slump and was suspended by manager-coach Punch Imlach when he refused to report to Rochester Americans of the American Hockey League. He joined the Americans just prior to the AHL playoffs.

Luckies Nip King's Hotel

OUTDOORS

with Alec Merriman

It's taking longer this year, it seems, for the bluebacks to reach the five-pound coho size. Blues are at Qualicum Beach in good numbers in the two-and-a-half to three-and-a-half-pound size but Deep Bay, where the first five-pounders are often taken in the last part of May, is still waiting for them to appear.

No blues were taken there at the weekend, but there were a few good-sized springs taken. But the blues are moving that way.

Fishing off the clay bank at Qualicum Beach has been good. Limit catches have been taken on Tom Mack No. 4 and 4½ spoons and four to six ounces of weight.

French Creek has also produced good blueback fishing and off Claytons and Nainose limit catches of three pounders, with the odd four pounder have been taken regularly. Surface buck-tailing hasn't been productive at Claytons, but add a little weight and the fish start to bite.

It seems that anything red, like a red Henry Smith Special, or a red Andy Reeker spoon, needs four to eight ounces to get them, but a silver Tom Mack or other silver spoons will take them at two ounces.

A few bluebacks have shown at Bates Beach, probably the first few stragglers.

Lots of blues are reported from Seymour Narrows north but they haven't reached Campbell River waters, where some good spring salmon fishing is reported in Menzies Bay and Duncan Bay. Plenty of feed is reported in Seymour Narrows.

Bluebacking in Nanaimo has slackened off a little and it may mean the runs have moved north and blues from southern waters are still working their way north.

Blues are reported in fair numbers off Oculum Point at Ladysmith, off Tent Island, Kuper Island and Bare Point at Chemainus.

Some springs are being taken in Cowichan Bay and Steve Gillis, with a 2½-pounder, was one of the lucky moochers.

A run of blues is reported off Patricia Bay in Saanich Inlet, but the spring salmon fishing—best in many years—is still the big news, although mid-week it appeared to be slackening off a little.

The springs have been taken from all over the Inlet... Tod Inlet to Willis Point, Deep Cove, and Indian Bay, but Finlayson Arm has been the most spectacular. In the past week, Hall's Boathouse has weighed 95 salmon from five to 21 pounds into the King Fisherman Contest. Sixty-one of the salmon weighed between 10 and 21 pounds.

Sidney and James Island waters have also been producing a few fish. Oak Bay has been fair at The Gap and off the Chain Islands. Victoria, Esquimalt, Pedder Bay, Becher Bay, Secretary Island, and Otter Point are all giving up the big springs now.

Charlie Roth, 3017 Shelbourne, hooked an 18-pound spring in the tall while mooching in The Gap at Oak Bay with 10-pound-test line. It took him 60 thrilling minutes to land it.

Troul fishing in the lakes is pretty good just about anywhere.

Good-sized rainbows up to three pounds are being taken on the fly from Old Wolf and Council Lakes. Shawanigan has been best on the troll. Cowichan Lake came on hotter than ever after last weekend with five and six pounders being taken. Nanaimo Lakes, particularly Fourth Lake, were hot at the weekend, but fish were smallish. Plenty of trout have been showing in Comox Lake at the south end around the log booms. A small run of steelhead is reported in Browns River, a tributary of the Puntledge. Campbell River area lakes are all producing fairly well.

Ole Carlson, with a 2½-pounder won the Lions Club derby at Campbell River Sunday. D. Bullock with a 2½-pounder from Lower Campbell Lake was one of the women's division.

W. Worthington, with a 1½-pounder won the girls' division and Fred Hammer, with a ½-pounder won the boys' division.

Latest lure to hit the market is Barry's Minifish, invented by Dave Barry who developed the Flatfish which has become one of the biggest catches of both salmon and trout. His Minifish is a vibrating lure with a variety of actions and combinations and may be used with or without a float. It can be rigged for casting, for use with a backtail fly, a Flatfish or hooky kootchy, or used by itself.

It looks good and should attract fisherman. We will let you know if it takes fish after we have given it some good test fishing.

Victoria Fish and Game Club will hold its Club Trap Championship shoot at its Goldstream trap layout Sunday. The June 2 date, scheduled in the club's fixture list was changed to May 26.

On June 2, the fish and game club will hold its annual club salmon derby in Saanich Inlet from dawn until weigh-in deadline at the Goldstream Clubhouse at 1 p.m. There will be trophies for heaviest spring, heaviest coho and a junior trophy for young coho fishermen.

The Victoria Fish and Game Club has launched a junior division, which will operate with its own officers and minimum guidance from senior members. John Crook is interim president.

Suspension Stay Refused Derby Hearing Date Set

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—The Kentucky Racing Commission said Thursday its investigation into the disqualification of Dancer's Image as the Kentucky Derby winner will begin June 18.

No site was set for the hearing. The commission also turned down a request that it lift the suspensions of trainers Lou Cavaliere of Toronto and Robert Bernard, pending completion of their investigation.

Both were given 90-day suspensions by Churchill Downs stewards because phenylbutazone, a prohibited medication, was found in Dancer's Image following the Derby May 4.

A stay of the ban would have permitted the men to handle the Peter Fuller colt for the Belmont Stakes in New York on June 1. After the stewards placed Dancer's Image last in the Derby, they announced the official winner would be Calumet Farm's Forward Pass and that the Derby purse would be redistributed.

Fuller, a Boston area dealer, later appealed the disqualification and this is one of the issues to be taken up at the commission hearing.

Hockey Program Extended But Future Not Bright

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—The impression created during discussions Thursday on Canada's national hockey team was that its future is something less than bright.

The operation showed a $107,880 deficit during the 1967-68 season, according to the financial report released to delegates attending the annual meeting of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

FACE REBUILDING

At least eight players will have to be replaced next season and the national team must compete financially against National Hockey League clubs for adequate talent.

These two major problems prompted the delegates to pass a resolution guaranteeing the continued operation of the team for at least two years—until the 1970 world tournament in Canada—although the program may be much less extensive than it was over the last four years.

FOUNDATION PLEDGE

Gordon Jucker, executive director of the CAHA who read the financial report, said the program had been in grave danger of being shelved until the Hockey Canada foundation pledged its continued support. The foundation, which collects scholarships for the team's players, has already agreed to cover $40,000 of the program's $119,641 total deficit over the last four years and an additional $60,000 towards next season's operation.

The team's officials were instructed by the delegates to explore the possibilities of player replacements, additional financing and possible aid—player-wise—from Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League.

"The professional people have promised to sit down and talk with us, but I'd like to make it clear that we have no promise of anything from them," Jucker said. Much depends on the outcome

Transfers Trimmed

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association has reduced branch-to-branch transfers between junior hockey clubs in Western Canada to two players.

The regulation had previously permitted three branch-to-branch transfers among Western Canada teams playing in a league comprised of four to five teams and four transfers between clubs competing in leagues of more than five teams.

The amended regulations also prevents East to West transfers between junior clubs along with branch-to-branch transfers of mid-level players.

Relays Decide Winner In Belmont High Meet

Victories in the last two relays gave House III first place in the Belmont Senior High School inter-house track and field meet Thursday by a slim margin over House I.

In the final standings House III had 152 points, House I, 147 and House II, 84. Anne Caffery helped House I build a lead in the individual events by winning the 60 and 100-yard dashes and the shot put for the only triple win of the meet.

Gary Barber and Jody Sheen led House III with two wins each. Other double winners were Frank Stevens of House I and Glen Kilchiff of House II. House I was leading by two points before the two final relay events but placed second in both races to finish five points behind House III on the 10-7-4 scoring system for the relays.

Merriman Memorial Golf Draws Outstanding Field

An outstanding field, and perhaps the largest ever for a Victoria tournament, will take part in the annual Cedar Hill Open and John Merriman Memorial Golf tournament on Sunday.

Included in the record entry of 215 are 43 amateurs with handicaps of six or less and 19 professionals, including Wayne Vollmer, Bob Cox, Jr., Lyle Crawford and Doug Reid of Vancouver and Vaughan Trapp and Bill Wakeham of Victoria, champion and runner-up, respectively, in the recent Vancouver Island Open match-play championship.

Included in the amateur contingent are several scratch and one-handicap golfers from Vancouver and most of the low handicap players on Vancouver Island.

First foursome will tee-off at 7 a.m. and the last group is scheduled to leave the tee at 2:22 p.m.

For Rescuing Americans

Russian Sailors Honored

VANCOUVER (UPI) — The Russian freighter Orekhov will be carrying more than a cargo of wheat when it returns to the Soviet Union Saturday. It will be carrying a crew swelled with pride and a scroll as testimony to their bravery.

In a brief ceremony at Cyril elevator in New Westminster Wednesday the Seafarers International Union paid tribute to the crewmen for their brave efforts last October to save crew members of the American freighter Panoscanic Faith.

BU SCROLL

SIU North American representative Steve Troy presented a testimonial scroll to Orekhov master, Captain Alexander Fatigov. The ship's master at the time of the rescue, Captain Leonid Zhasterenko, has since retired.

The scroll said: "Their unselfish fish willingness to risk their lives for their fellow men symbolizes the timehonored traditions of the sea in the brotherhood of the sea throughout the world."

NORTH PACIFIC

When the U.S. freighter Panoscanic Faith went down in the north Pacific last October, the Orekhov was one of the first vessels to rush to the scene and start searching for the American ship's 42 crewmen.

Three of the Russian crew members jumped into the icy waters to recover eight Americans compared with only five survivors picked up by other ships in the area.

New Home Recipe Reducing Plan

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unwanted fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drug store and ask for four ounces of Naran Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoons full a day as needed and follow the Naran Plan. If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly least disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

Mental Aid 'Unfair' In Province

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dr. Kenneth J. Davies said Wednesday that medical insurance schemes in British Columbia are discriminating against people with emotional illness by limiting the amount of treatment they can receive.

Dr. Davies, chairman of the scientific planning committee of the Canadian Mental Health Association's B.C. division, said B.C. is the only province where prepaid schemes put an arbitrary limit on such treatment.

NO LIMIT

B.C.'s 15 hours of specialist treatment "is partial medical care," he said. "In every other province, patients are insured for specialist treatment as required without this arbitrary once-a-week limit."

The limit applies to the provincial medical insurance plan and private insurance plans.

Joseph H. Corbille, general manager of the CU and C health plan said the limitation was worked out between officials of B.C. health plans and the Mental Health Association.

Student Rifts Boiling In Hawaii, California

From UPI
Student demonstrators blocked doorways to the university of Hawaii administration building Thursday in the fourth day of a sit-in protesting the firing of a professor. An administration spokesman said, meanwhile, continued at San Francisco state college.

The 150 student rebels along with some University of Hawaii faculty members vowed to continue their siege until university regents revoke the dismissal of a political science professor outspoken in his opposition to the Vietnam war. IN AUGUST

The regents announced during the night Wednesday that the professor would be dropped from the faculty at the end of his contract term in August while 600 students camped in outside the administration building on the Honolulu campus.

David Truman, vice-president of Columbia University in New York City, said student rebels are losing support but the university "is not out of the woods yet." Earlier Thursday, police ended a brief shouting match between striking and non-striking students at the Morningside Heights campus near Harlem.

NEGRO ATHLETES
A group of negro athletes at Iowa State asked for the right to live off campus and for dismissal of a coach and trainer unless the two "change their attitude" toward black students.

Campus protests continued at several other spots across the nation but they were generally peaceful.

MEETINGS HELD
In San Francisco, demonstrators lounged or milled around in the state college administration building. Numerous meetings were held between students and administrators on the protesters' demands for ouster of an air force ROTC unit, rehiring of a militant instructor and a new policy on admission of minority students.

President John Summerskill, who had police clear the building and arrest 26 protesters Tuesday night, said no further efforts would be made to halt the sit-in as long as the protesters were "peaceful."

Royal Loo Trip Creates Lulu of Outcry

LONDON (CP) — Fixing up the "loo" for royalty has led to a fresh rash of criticism—this time from the university campus.

Some 200 students plan to boycott the Queen's visit to the University of East Anglia Saturday, saying they object to "lavish" spending on flowers and redecoration of a toilet set aside for use of the monarch.

A spokesman in the vice-chancellor's office said Friday the university has agreed to allow the students to hold an open-air "seminar" during the Queen's visit. He said he doubted whether more than 200 of the 1,750 university students will join the dissenters.

The spokesman denied that large sums have been spent on polishing up the toilet, though he conceded that a "normal amount" is being spent on "a bit of renovation."

The students emphasized their protest is not directed against the Queen but against the university.

Similar criticism was aired by workers earlier this year at an atomic power station at Winfrith, about 150 miles southwest of London.

Workers complained about the heavy cost of preparing for Prince Philip's visit, including special decoration for a lavatory.

A Buckingham Palace spokesman said the palace does not insist on any special attention or changes in toilets on the occasion of a royal visit.

"We always advise those seeking guidance that there should be no extravagance," the spokesman said. "We advise against elegant preparations."

He added, however, that the advice is not always taken. Some local functionaries still prefer to "do up the loo."

Capitol Hill demonstrators raise fists after arrests

Rich Food Pledged To American Poor

Washington (UPI) — The Poor People's Marchers had their first confrontation with police in Capitol Hill Thursday and won their first concession from the government with a promise to provide more free food for hungry Americans.

In an action that caught both sides by surprise, Capitol Hill police arrested 18 demonstrators in the rain outside the Longworth House office building.

BOUGHT TOP MAN
The chanting demonstrators, demanding a meeting with Rep. Wilbur Mills, (D-Ark.), one of the most powerful men in Congress, refused to break up into small groups.

The arrests, the first since 3,000 demonstrators started arriving in Washington 12 days ago, sent Rev. Jesse Jackson, a march leader, rushing to Capitol Hill to plead — successfully — with police that all 100 marchers not be seized. The 18 arrested were later released in the custody of march officials.

WILL DO MORE
Later, with 200 supporters jammed into a conference room in the agriculture department, Rev. Ralph Abernathy heard agriculture secretary Orville Freeman promise to do more to feed the poor.

He promised that some of the $277 million in agriculture department contingency funds that were to have been returned unsent to the treasury on July 1 instead will be used for emergency food distribution programs in some of the 331 U.S. "hunger counties."

VITAMIN ENRICHED
Freeman disclosed that five new types of food — canned chicken, grapefruit juice, instant hot cereal and vitamin-enriched instant mashed potatoes — will be included in the surplus commodity distribution program.

Canned chicken was the first meat to be included in the surplus food program. Nutritionists concerned with hunger in America have complained that the poor were receiving too many starches.

FOURTH DAY
The film, taken at an anti-draft, anti-war rally at the Arlington Street church in Boston last Oct. 16 by a commercial cameraman, was one of three introduced so far in evidence.

A letter was read to the jury, quoting one of the other three defendants as saying, "Our intention is to aid, abet and counsel them (young men) to evade the draft."

Indians' Vote Campaign Affected by Callup?*Forest Fire Duty Sparks Racism Charge

REGINA (CP) — A Saskatchewan Indian-Metis leader, Dr. Howard Adams of Saskatoon, Thursday charged the provincial Department of Natural Resources with practising discrimination against his people in conscripting men to fight forest fires.

Dr. Adams, chairman of the Saskatchewan Native Action Committee and a forceful advocate of "red power" — control by Indians and Metis of their own affairs and achievement by them of social equality — said in an interview that only Indian and Metis men were conscripted this week from Green Lake, Sask., to fight forest fires in the Meadow Lake area.

"RACISM" CLAIM
"This," he said, "is the worst kind of racism."
Dr. Adams' charge was denied today by officials of the natural resources department. Field supervisor Grant Fladager said in Meadow Lake, 135 miles northwest of Prince Albert, that the forest fire situation in the area is so serious that almost every man from Green Lake is on the fire lines. He said there is only a handful of whites in the community.

CAMPAIGN MANAGER
Dr. Adams said he was particularly incensed that one of the earliest fire draftees was 29-year-old Rod Bishop of Green Lake. Mr. Bishop, who is of mixed Indian-white parentage, is campaign manager in Meadow Lake constituency in the federal election for the Saskatchewan Native Action Committee candidate, 25-year-old Carole Lalavie, a Cree Indian.

Mr. Bishop was conscripted against his will specifically because of his political commitments, Dr. Adams said. He said Mr. Bishop was taken before other native residents of Green Lake who were unemployed.

About 60 per cent of Meadow Lake constituency is Metis and Indian by population, and the native action committee is hoping to win enough votes to send Miss Lalavie to the House of Commons to represent native interests.

Dr. Adams, who has a doctorate from Berkeley University, is a Professor of education at the University of Saskatchewan, Saskatoon campus.

Natural resources minister Ross Barrie said in an interview Thursday he had no knowledge of Mr. Bishop's and Dr. Adams' protests. Speaking of Mr. Bishop's election commitment, he said: "I wouldn't think this is terribly important."

NO ONE SUFFERING
"I don't think anyone will suffer if this fellow fights this fire," Mr. Fladager said he was unaware when Mr. Bishop was conscripted that the man was Miss Lalavie's campaign manager. He said it was not uncommon for police to conscript initially those who refuse to go voluntarily to the fire lines.

Under the Prairie and Forest Fires Act of Saskatchewan, any fit male between 18 and 60 years of age except trainmen, telegraphers and doctors may be called upon to fight a forest fire. The penalty for refusal is a fine of $50 to $100.

COMMON SENSE
Mr. Barrie, the natural resources minister, said "Good common sense" is used in drafting firefighters. "A man would not be taken if he had to neglect his family or leave some urgent business."

One major forest fire is burning two miles from Green Lake and another six miles from the settlement. Other fires are scattered throughout the Meadow Lake area and forestry officials say the fire situation is extremely serious in northern Saskatchewan.

Supreme Court Near Year-Round Calendar

The provincial government moved Thursday towards its stated goal of keeping the B.C. Supreme Court operating 12 months a year.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner, commenting on new regulations covering the court operations just approved by the cabinet, termed the changes "basically an opening up of the business of courts to provide greater public service during the holiday period."

The cabinet order set out amended regulations for the summer vacation period of July and August and Dec. 24 to Jan. 3. Mr. Bonner said a trial judge or court order may direct that certain business be carried out during the vacation period.

Judges will continue to sit in chambers daily in Vancouver and elsewhere in the province as required, the attorney-general said. The previous ban on examinations for discovery and certain other court business during the long vacation has also been lifted.

Ferries Wage Rise To Cost $800,000

Salary increases for some 1,200 B.C. ferries officers and crewmen will cost the government an estimated additional $800,000 a year, a spokesman for the Civil Service Commission said Thursday.

The boosts average 6 per cent for the 850 non-licensed personnel, and officers get an average of between 9 and 10 per cent more. The new salaries are retroactive to April 1.

WEST COAST FERRY
The new schedule, approved by the provincial cabinet Thursday, gives officers and crewmen on the government's ferry fleet parity with wages paid by other shipping lines operating on the west coast.

It fulfills an agreement arrived at last February which ended a week-long strike by unionized personnel which isolated Vancouver Island, except for a single CPR ferry link from Nanaimo.

RUPERT QUEEN MOVE
Masters of ferries on the mainland run receive a $75-a-month increase, to $825. The master of the Queen of Prince Rupert, operating between Kelsey Bay and Prince Rupert, gets the same boost, to a new salary of $850.

A chief officers gets $85 a month more, bringing his salary to $685. Chief engineers on major vessels get a $70-a-month raise to $840, while the same position on the Queen of Prince Rupert is also boosted $70 to $855.

A second engineer gets $55 a month more, with a total salary of $675. Bosuns are boosted $30 to $470; cashiers on ferries get $360, up $35; female cleaners

Limit Upped

Recipients of the old-age pension and pension for the blind and disabled in B.C. can now earn more without losing any of their $30 monthly provincial supplementary allowance, Social Welfare Minister Don Campbell announced Thursday.

Effective June 1, the limits for these categories will be raised to $137.10, from $105, for single persons, and $244.20, from $218, for married couples, the minister said.

Rate Raised For Hydro Borrowing

The provincial cabinet said Thursday it is willing to pay up to 7 3/10 per cent interest on $10,000,000 in borrowing which it authorized for B.C. Hydro.

The borrowing power was originally given to the crown agency last Feb. 26, but at that time the ceiling on the interest rate was placed at 7 per cent.

A spokesman for the finance department said the lower rate of interest would not permit any borrowing under current economic conditions. However, the official added, the cabinet's action is merely granting of the necessary authority, and doesn't mean Hydro will borrow the full $10,000,000 at the higher interest rate.

Ants No Problem

By M. V. CHESNUT

I had a rather peculiar coincidence in my mail a bit earlier this spring. I had two letters in the same mail, both from ladies, both about peonies, and both concerned about ants, but from diametrically opposed viewpoints.

One lady reported a massive invasion of ants on her peony plants, and because, in her view, anything that crawls is a deadly enemy, she wanted to know what she could use to eradicate the ants before they destroyed her plants.

My second correspondent was worried because she had NO ants on her peonies. A helpful neighbour had told her that the flower buds would not open unless they were visited by ants, and her plea was for some way of attracting ants to the swelling peony buds on her plants.

This is a very old superstition, but there is absolutely no truth in it — healthy peony buds will open whether or not the ants visit them. It is true that peony buds will sometimes fail to open, drying up or rotting on the plant, but this is due to a fungus infection called Botrytis paeoniae, and it has nothing whatever to do with ants.

Ants perform no useful service to peonies, then, but by the same token, they do no harm either. They are attracted to peonies because the flower buds exude a sweet, gummy sap, and ants will always go for anything sweet — remember how they swarm over the jam sandwiches at the family picnic? But they don't harm the buds or affect the health of the plant by licking up this sweet exudate.

The kind of ants we have in our part of the world do not eat our plants nor suck their juices. I don't know too much about these interesting insects, but I understand their diet consists largely of dead and rotting materials in the soil, certain fungi, oil from weed seeds, and the dead bodies of small grubs and other soil-inhabiting creatures, so they could be looked upon as scavengers nature's housecleaners. I wouldn't call them exactly harmless, but any harm they do is more or less by accident rather than by intent.

For instance, if ants took it into their heads to start tunnelling and nesting under one of your prized plants, that plant would probably die by reason of root disturbance. And certainly a lot of ant hills can make an unlovely mess of the front lawn.

They have a habit, too, of pasturing their milk cattle — the green aphids of plant lice — on the succulent tips of our best plants, and have been known to move aphids from one shoot to another greener and sappier one, returning from time to time to milk them of their sweet exudate.

On the credit side of the ledger, that sandy stuff they show up around their ant hills is grand for mixing with houseplant soil. It has been treated with some kind of formic acid secreted by the worker ants, and I know of one very successful grower of African violets who swears by the stuff.

On the whole, I am against the indiscriminate killing of ants, and as long as they are doing no obvious harm, I think they should be allowed to go their own way, performing whatever functions nature has assigned to them.

When they are a nuisance — as when ant hills appear on the lawn — about the best method of dealing with them is to drench the nest with chlordane emulsion in water, one tablespoonful per gallon. For ants in the house, the garden shops have a liquid ant killer bait — comes in a little yellow plastic bottle — which is remarkably effective and is as harmless as common borax.

Let There Be Light

We have transformed our backyard into a Garden of Allah with a string of colored lights.

What gave me the idea was the fountain. It seemed sad to let so much beauty vanish in the darkness every night.

I meant to buy only a light or two, but I found out they come in sets of six, which may be spaced as you like along a cable. There were two amber lights, and one each of blue, green, white and pink.

"Won't it look a little Hollywood?" my wife asked. "Yes," I admitted. "But why not? Hollywood is part of culture. We must learn to use the good and discard the vulgar."

We decided to dig up the old lawn around the fountain and plant marigolds and zinnias. It took her three weekends.

Meanwhile, I was far from idle. Every evening when I came home I got the lights out and went to work. One can not merely put the lights in here and there, willy-nilly, and achieve any kind of aesthetic result.

The first time, I set the six lights out while it was still daylight. When darkness fell I turned them on. It was artistically a failure. There was nothing electrically wrong. All the lights worked, but they didn't add up to anything meaningful.

I mixed some drinks and we sat in the patio, looking out through the screen at my work and trying to figure out what was wrong.

"What we have here," I pointed out, "is a creative art. I hadn't thought of it that way before. It's actually a form of sculpture."

One must use light like a chisel, I explained, seeking some harmony of light and shadow that will infuse the inanimate subject matter with drama.

Every night for a week I went at it with a creative fury. Never was I satisfied. I tried various methods. One night I tried mixing the drinks before fixing the lights, instead of after. If there was any improvement, it was too subtle for my eye.

I spent one evening studying the work of Michelangelo in a book. Actually, we both faced the same problem. It was a matter of light and surfaces.

Michelangelo resolved his problem by carving the stone: he created the surfaces. I had to solve my problem in the opposite way. I could not change the surfaces. I must manipulate the light.

I wish Michelangelo might have seen how I worked it out. First, I stuck the white light in a potted plant outside the patio and aimed it at the figure of the woman in the fountain, concentrating the beam on her noble bosom.

White is the most dramatic of lights, I believe. In directing the full glare of my one white light at the figure's torso, I was making my major statement as an artist.

Then I set to work with the pink, blue, green and amber lights, filling in my background — orchestrating, so to speak. I created harmonies and counterpoints and one or two minor discords, to tighten the tension.

I let some pink light bathe a tree and brushed some blue over its lower boughs. I sent some green up through another tree. Then, finally, I wrapped the amber, like a cloth of gold, about the limbs of the woman of the fountain.

That night we sat in the patio sipping orange crushes until the last streak of twilight faded from the sky. Then I flipped the switch. For a moment I was speechless. "Well," I said at last, "how does it look?"

"Hollywoody," she said. "I hope to do a study, some day, of the female weakness for making adjectives by adding a 'y' to a proper noun. Chineseey, for example. Aagh!"

Burton Goes Bald

NEW YORK (NANA) — You will see a new Richard Burton in The Sign of the Cross. He will be completely bald. In case you have forgotten, Richard is playing a barber with Rex Harrison, both homosexuals. "Only two such well-known lovers of ladies would dare do the film," Richard assured me before I left London.

Sammy Davis Junior will take his Golden Boy from Chicago early in June, and appear with the company which includes Gloria de Haven, 72 hours later at the London Palladium. It will be quite a feat transporting the scenery, etc. By air, yet!

Jackie Cooper in England to set up a new TV series for Screen Gems. While dining at the new "in" place on Kings Road, Arethusa, an aging lady pointed a dramatic finger at Jackie and said, "How did you grow all that hair? I thought you were bald." She was confusing him with other famed child actor, Jackie Coogan. The star of a New York stage hit is about to get his marching orders. The bottle. It's a pity because he is a fine actor.

Producer Harry Saltzman was flying 22 Second World War Messerschmitts from Spain to England for his "Battle of Britain" picture. They can only fly 90 minutes or so at a time, then they have to land to refuel. All the German planes finally arrived in England to begin what the Germans called The Battle for England and Operation Sea Lion. There were 400,000 men and 15,000 barges at Pas-de-Calais on the French side of the channel awaiting the signal that the Luftwaffe had destroyed the RAF on the ground and in the air. Thank God the signal could not be given! And that is what Saltzman's film is all about.

Joe Levine is jubilantly sure that The Graduate will beat all existing records. And he may be right. In the first few months of release, the hit film directed by wonder boy Mike Nichols, has earned $21,593,000. Now Joe is going full steam ahead with The Adventurers, the director of which, Lewis Gilbert, flew into New York from London for one day to set up the one week on location here in the fall. Then it's off to Columbia for the 12 weeks to follow. The picture starts in Paris in mid-July.

Airs His Thoughts

One of the most common compensatory mechanisms of the human being is to carry around a sense of guilt for things he should not feel guilty about, in order to avoid feeling guilty for the things he should feel guilty about.

Maturity consists, if anything, in knowing the hidden price of whatever you want, and truly judging whether you are willing to pay it.

Any creed whose basic doctrines do not include respect for the creeds of others, is simply power-politics masquerading as philosophy.

A person who knows how not to say the wrong thing at a time of crisis or grief has a more innate sense of tact than those who try to murmur the appropriate things.

It is worth remembering that every custom was at one time an eccentricity — carrying an umbrella was laughed at and hooted down when it first made its appearance in Europe; and if something so simple and sensible could be scorned, it behooves us to be modest in our reactions to any new custom, design or device.

A "replis" is not a model or a miniature, but a copy of the original in the same size.

We talk glibly about the "knowledge explosion" of our day, but we really have no idea of how fast and furious it is — for instance, in last February alone, four discoveries in galactic astronomy shattered most previous theories about the "big-bang" origin of the universe, and gave credence again to the "steady-state" theory, which had been discredited for the last few years.

It is often easier to be just to those we care little about than to those we love.

Reform must begin, and practically end, with oneself; as an old African proverb has it: "If you try to cleanse others — like soap, you will waste away in the process."

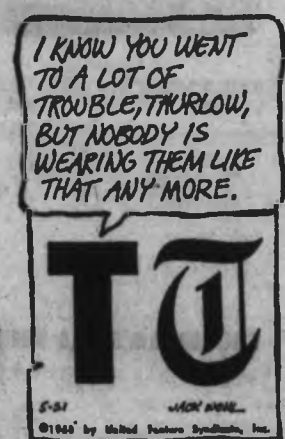

If you get paid before you do the work, the work seems twice as hard as when you are expecting payment at the end of it.

When a woman ceases to be something of a mystery to a man, she ceases to attract him; thus, the intensive efforts of lovers to become true "soul-mates" is self-defeating for the female, and she is forever conspiring in her own destruction.

No poor man feels as insecure as the rich man who has inherited wealth and goes through life with the persistently uneasy feeling that he could not have made it on his own.

Wolf? They All Cried 'Fake'

Inept taxidermy?

Victoria photographer Jim Ryan bared his fangs Thursday at two Minnesota university officials who called one of his wolf photographs a fake.

Dr. David Mech of St. Paul's Macalester College biology department described the photograph as "the concoction of an inept taxidermist."

The University of Minnesota's public education coordinator, said the picture was a joke done by a group of biologists.

Mr. Ryan roared, "Let them stick an arm in that wolf's cage and see what kind of a joke they come out with."

It all started two years ago when Mr. Ryan photographed a wolf at Rudy's Pet Park in Saanich as a request of the San Diego based Outdoors Photographers League. The photo was needed for an American encyclopedia.

The subject was five-month-old Samba, who snarled and bared her fangs in best photographic style. Two dozen pictures were taken of the snarling damsel.

Thursday, Mr. Ryan got notice from the photo agency saying the staff members of the encyclopedia had taken one look at Samba and were "electrified."

Dr. Mech, after studying the photo, concluded:

"The holding of the ears forward and the baring of the upper incisors indicate an aggressive or offensive mood; however the drawing back of the lips indicates a fearful or defensive mood. These rarely, if ever, are seen as part of the same expression."

A University of Minnesota official said:

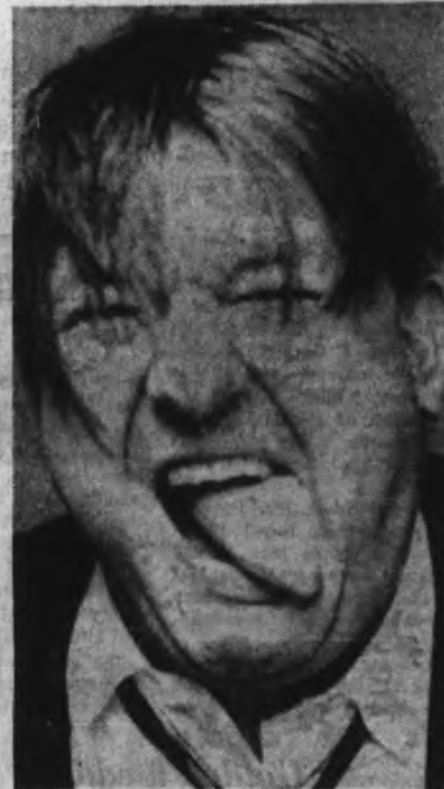

"Somewhere in the last 10 years I remember seeing this picture and if memory serves me right, the picture was done as a joke by a group of biologists. I think they took a dead fox, put false teeth in it (obviously these are not the teeth of the animal) they manipulated the tongue, and sent the picture out as valid."

Victorians know differently. Zoo owner Rudy Bauersachs — who bought Samba from a Moose Jaw dealer — sold her six weeks ago to a California film company.

Single Body May Rule Universities

By IAN STREET, Legislative Reporter

The provincial government loosened its purse strings Thursday to meet the rising cost of operating B.C.'s three public universities—but in doing so it served notice that new solutions are being sought.

Education Minister Leslie Peterson later indicated in an interview that the government might create a single governing body for all universities in the province as early as next year.

The aim, the minister said, is to end costly duplication of services while obtaining a more equitable distribution of available funds among the universities.

MORE FOR UVIC

The distribution of operating grants for the coming year sees the University of Victoria with $3,285,157, an increase of more than 19 per cent over 1967; University of British Columbia with $31,184,572, up 18 per cent; and Simon Fraser University with $13,555,241, up more than 16 per cent.

Mr. Peterson's announcement Thursday morning said the government had accepted the recommendations of the advisory board for the allocation of the $53,000,000 in operating grants contained in the current budget, which were raised by 50 per cent this year.

NEW COMMITTEE

He said later, however, that because the advisory board was made up of nominees from the universities, it was difficult for the board to be completely impartial in allocating funds.

The minister also announced a new advisory committee on inter-university relations which will study, among other things, methods of allocating funds such as the possible establishment of an independent grants commission.

W. C. Mearns is the UVic appointee to the committee which consists of Richard M. Bibb of UBC, Dean S. N. F. Chant and Alan M. Eyre of SFU, and deputy education minister Dr. G. Neil Perry, chairman.

The increased demand for higher education, Mr. Peterson said, is severely testing the ability of government everywhere to supply the necessary funds. In reaction, governments have demanded more efficient use of plant and personnel and more careful scrutiny of development plans.

HARD TO FOLLOW

The minister added: "Confronted by other demands from faculty and students, university administrators have, not surprisingly, found these governmental prescriptions difficult to follow."

In B.C., he added, higher education has been moving away from the simple arrangement involving only one public-supported provincial university to a more complex multi-university system.

The emergence of regional and district colleges, technological institutes and other post-secondary institutions — including private colleges and universities — means a new layer of educational services has been created.

VOLUNTARY EFFORTS

"The articulation of this network of publicly-supported institutions has been left largely to voluntary efforts of the organizations themselves, aided by technical assistance and advice of the academic and advisory boards," Mr. Peterson said.

He added: "As the aggregate demand for financial support has come up, an important problem has arisen: Shall this loose network relationship be continued or should a more formal system of relationships be adopted?"

Solutions adopted elsewhere — notably in New York and California, where single governing bodies for higher education have been established — have attempted with some success to preserve independence of institutions while establishing ground rules for the system as a whole, the minister said.

The newly established committee will review the adequacy of the five-year-old Universities Act in the light of experience, and is expected to bring in its final report before the 1969 legislative session.

Bird-Watchers

The ornithology section of the Victoria Natural History Society will make a bird-watching trip to East Sooke on Saturday, leaving Douglas and Hillside at 9 a.m. or from the Colwood Plaza at 10 a.m. Murray Matheson will lead the group. Members are expected to bring lunch.

H. Cuthbert Holmes

Major H. C. Holmes Dies

Faith in Victoria His Abiding Hobby

A man whose hobby was Victoria—its past, present and future—died Thursday on the eve of public recognition of his dauntless faith in the community.

Major H. Cuthbert Holmes, 66, Beach Drive, became Victoria's ninth freeman, March 13.

However ceremonies to confer the freedom of the city publicly upon the former alderman, were to have been held in June.

His Dream

Major Holmes was made a freeman by unanimous decision of members of city council, who Thursday stood in silence in his memory.

A former chairman of the Victoria Town Planning Commission, and of the Capital Region Planning Board, Major Holmes had a dominant dream of a regional concept for Greater Victoria.

Major Holmes retired from the real estate firm of Pemberton Holmes in 1965. He was a former president of the Victoria Real Estate Board.

War Council

He was born in Bellary, Madras, India, and had lived in India, Switzerland, France, England and Canada.

He received his BA and MA at Oxford and was called to the bar as a barrister of the Middle Temple, although he never practised law.

At the outbreak of the First World War, he joined the 25th Lancers (India Army) and went to France.

He transferred to the Irish Guards and was severely wounded at Ginchy in September, 1916.

He became a staff captain with the Supreme War Council at Versailles, and then brigade bombing instructor. He was invalided out of the army in 1921.

An art-lover, Major Holmes was a director of Little Centre, Victoria's first art gallery, and at the time of his death he was a member of the advisory board of the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria.

Collector

He was a collector of fine furniture, silverware, books and paintings, including the works of English and Italian masters and a large collection of Emily Carr canvases.

He presented the Art Gallery with its first Emily Carr painting.

At the time of his death, Major Holmes was still active

Tribute Paid

Lieutenant-Governor Pearkes was presented Thursday with a framed certificate of honorary membership in the Canadian Red Cross Society, signed by Governor-General Roland Michener.

The presentation was made by A. D. Stanley, president of the British Columbia-Yukon division.

In many Victoria organizations, including the Victoria Chamber of Commerce and several planning groups, Victoria Mayor Hugh Stephen paid tribute to him Thursday.

'Sudden Shadow'

"In the sudden shadow of his passing," he said, "it would be quite impossible to make any tribute that could do even partial justice to Major Holmes' contribution to this community."

"For more than 50 years, his contribution to Victoria has been so wide-ranging and so deep that there is scarcely an area of activity that has not been enriched by his interest and support," continued Mr. Stephen.

"Perhaps his most enduring contribution was in the field of community planning."

"Almost every worthwhile initiative that has been taken in this regard in the region this past 20 years stems from his imagination and conscientious sponsorship."

Survivors

Major Holmes is survived by his wife, Philippa, whom he married in 1917, and their five children—Philip, who is president of Pemberton Holmes; Cecily, Desmond, Elizabeth and Vincent.

Funeral services have been set tentatively for 2 p.m. Monday in Christ Church Cathedral.

Emergency-Only Care in Fee Aid Fight

Dentists to Withhold Services to Welfare

The British Columbia Dental Association says it will refuse all but emergency care to welfare patients starting June 30.

Dr. A. E. Swanson, provincial association president, said Thursday in Vancouver that 700 dentists registered with the association have been advised of the plan.

He said the scheme, which will affect about 75,000 persons on welfare rolls, is an effort to get the provincial government to pay a greater portion of the price of the treatment.

The provincial government now pays dentists 57 per cent of their 1966 fee schedule for treatment of welfare cases. In the 1966-67 fiscal year, dental services for welfare cases cost $1,400,000.

START TO PAY

"We feel it is time the government assumed complete responsibility for dental service to welfare patients," Dr. Swanson said. "We believe in rendering service to the indigent, but feel it's time the government started paying for it."

Dr. G. B. Cranston, president of the association's Victoria branch, said he is in favor of the decision, but added, "This is only a personal reaction."

"The branch hasn't had a chance to discuss this, and I can't speak for other members."

"Of course," he added, "even if the branch endorsed the provincial action, it would still be up to the individual to make his own decision."

VICTORIA EFFECT

Dr. Cranston said a substantial number of welfare dental patients in Victoria would be affected by the decision.

Dr. Swanson said government contributions during the 1966-67 fiscal year totalled $700,000, and since the patient pays nothing, dentists feel they are wrongfully assessed for the additional $700,000.

He said the association wants the government to pay 90 per cent of the schedule and that it has been negotiating with the government for a year.

Rezoning Weighed

Rockland Avenue Sanctity May Be Breached

By A. H. MURPHY

The sanctity of the Rockland Avenue area, long secure as a location for "better-class homes," may be breached in the near future, members of city council were told Thursday.

An indication of a possible change in council policy toward the area came when aldermen deferred a proposal to change the zoning in a 2½-acre, church-owned tract at 1322 Rockland and allow multiple dwelling.

The council's advisory planning commission urged the application to change the zoning be refused, but aldermen hesitated and finally sent the matter back to the commission for reconsideration.

Hinging on the change in zoning is a plan of the Anglican Diocesan Council for Social Services to demolish an existing boarding house, which accommodates 24 old people, and build a new one to take care of 96.

The present structure pre-dates the zoning laws, but to build the new one the church would have to have a change in local regulations which are rigidly geared to the construction of quality, single-family homes.

Speaking for the diocesan council, Canon Graham Baker said the Caroline Macklem Home had been used to house old people for the past 20 years. The church wanted to take care of more people.

Stolen Pet Replaced: Pure White, Pregnant

Little Barbara Clark, who has been pining for a stolen guinea pig, is slowly regaining her faith in humanity.

Mrs. G. W. Clark of 4130 San Ardo said Thursday her seven-year-old daughter had been deeply moved by the large number of people offering to replace the pet she had called Mopsy.

Mopsy, who was expecting a litter in about two weeks, was stolen Tuesday night from a pen in the yard behind the Clark home.

Mrs. Clark said there had been "a wonderful response" to the story that appeared in Thursday's Colonist about Barbara's plight.

"People have been calling all day and offering guinea pigs. We could very well start a guinea pig ranch if we wanted to," Mrs. Clark said.

She said Barbara had decided to accept a guinea pig, both pure white and pregnant, just like Mopsy.

"But she still says she'd like to have her Mopsy back," Mrs. Clark said.

McPherson Library Helped by Grant

The University of Victoria's McPherson Library has been granted $19,000 by the Canada Council for purchase of research material.

The grant was announced Thursday by the council, which awarded a total of $1,000,000 to Canada's university libraries. Dean Halliwell, head of the McPherson Library, said late Thursday that the funds would be spent mostly on books for graduate students.

The library now has 320,000 volumes, best book-per-student ratio in Western Canada.

The new building would conform to the residential character of the neighborhood, would take full advantage of existing land contours and would be landscaped, he said.

Canon Baker stressed it would not be an apartment building.

People in the area were agreeable, he said and, in fact, felt that a quiet, automobile-free institution would be preferable to other uses of the land.

Council's representative on the planning commission stressed it was merely following council policy in recommending rejection.

"However," said Ald. Ian Stewart, "we may have to review this policy in the near future. We had no objection to this type of much-needed accommodation for old people but the simple fact was that it offended council policy with regard to the Rockland area."

"I say again, though, that the day may not be far off when we are forced, by the pressures for housing, to review our stand with regard to Rockland. We must look very seriously at this district."

Ald. Clyde Savage was undecided.

"Frankly, I don't know just how to vote on this issue. I want time to think it over and, therefore, I think we should send it back to be reconsidered in the light of new evidence presented by Canon Baker," he observed.

Council agreed. Back it went.

To Victoria Historic Gavel Donated

A cherrywood gavel and stand made from a tree planted by Sir James Douglas, was presented to the Victoria mayor and council Thursday.

Making the presentation on the eve of Victoria's 100th anniversary as the capital of British Columbia was Alnale Helmecken, city archivist, great-grandson of Sir James and grandson of John Sebastian Helmecken, who was speaker of the House at the time.

Mr. Helmecken reminded council Thursday that for the first four years of its 100-year reign, Victoria was capital of a crown colony.

The cherry tree was felled during clearing of the site for the new provincial museum-archives complex on Belleville Street, Mr. Helmecken said.

It was planted there by Sir James in 1851.

PERSONAL MENTION

By Dorothy Wrotnowski

Is there anything that causes more excitement than a wedding in the family? Not much more. Just ask any woman, mother or daughter or even father. June used to be THE month but now May has become equally as popular for this important day of days.

Late this month, on the 31st there will be a wedding in Kingston, Ont., that is of equal interest in Victoria.

Bonnie Jean Rutherford and Mr. James Gordon Peacock will be married in the Royal Military College chapel in Kingston on the last day of the month. A day before the groom graduates from the College.

It was while Mr. Peacock was attending Royal Roads that the couple met. Bonnie Jean, a teacher went East last September and has been teaching in a Kingston elementary school.

Leaving on the 29th headed east for the wedding will be the bride's mother, Mrs.

Philip Alan Taylor with her two daughters, Leslie and Alex Taylor. The next day, father of the bride, Colla P. Rutherford and his wife will also leave for Kingston.

An uncle of the bride, Bill Squire and his wife will travel from Hartford, Conn., for the wedding. Bill Squire will do the honors in proposing the toast.

The groom's parents, Capt. and Mrs. Gordon Peacock of Henry Farm Drive, Ottawa, will also be at the wedding.

The young couple will live in Kingston where the groom has received his first posting.

Golden Wedding

A couple who celebrated 50 years of married life recently were Mr. and Mrs. Stanley P. Langley. A family dinner party at the Princess Mary Restaurant was held to mark the occasion.

Both the Langleys were born in Victoria of pioneer stock and were married by the late Bishop Scottfield in Christ Church Cathedral on May 14, 1918, following Mr. Langley's return from overseas service in the First World War.

After living many years abroad, Mr. and Mrs. Langley returned here on retirement.

Here for Birthday

Visiting here briefly on their way home to Lethbridge, Alta., from a holiday in Palm Springs, were Dr. and Mrs. Hugh A. Arnold.

They were here to see Dr. Arnold's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Arnold and to help Mr. Arnold celebrate his birthday at a dinner in the Garden Cafe.

Sisters Step Out

It's a once-a-year get-together for four sisters when one of them, Mrs. Martin Filasta comes over from Seattle on a two-week visit.

The other three are Mrs. James Ritchie, Mrs. A. B. Findlay and Mrs. Peter Bell, all of Victoria.

The sisters like a little celebration on their own like stepping out to dinner. The other night they were at the Douglas Hotel where they were photographed.

Mrs. Ritchie left her home which was about six miles from Edinburgh to come here almost 50 years ago. Then from 1923 they lived in Seattle until Mr. Ritchie's retirement in 1965 when they lost little time in coming back to Victoria.

The Ritchies, who hail from the north, Banffshire, haven't been back to Scotland for 20 years. But they are talking and planning a visit to be made next year.

Mrs. Bell was the last sister to leave Scotland. She and her husband only came 10 years ago and that was because both their daughters were married and living in Victoria.

Poet's Protection Policeman's Cape

By EUGENIA SHEPPARD

NEW YORK — When Noel Harrison stepped off the plane from Los Angeles the other day he was wearing an English policeman's cape and a black slouch hat and carrying a 41-line poem he had written on the trip.

The son of Rex Harrison and his first wife has written some 50 or 60 poems in the course of his 34 years, but has made no effort to turn them into a book. His first published poem, written on the back of an envelope was re-typed later at the Plaza.

The poem pretty well explains Noel Harrison who leads what he calls a "very country kind of life" in one of the Los Angeles canyons, "the one that's closest to the beach."

Between them he and his blonde wife Sara have four children, one of hers and a girl, boy, girl aged nine, six, and three who are theirs. Part of the household, too, are horses, a monkey, and two cats that just had kittens before Noel left.

Though most people would think of his guitar-playing, acting, singing, and TV appearances with stars like Leslie Uggams the most glamorous and exciting kind of career, Noel Harrison says, "Sometimes I think it's a strange way to make a living. This summer I'll be in stock. I do just about everything that's offered to me."

For the three weeks singing engagement in the Plaza's Persian Room that brought him here this time, he brought most of his favorite clothes. "I own enough so that I don't know what to put on."

For his opening he put on a black velvet suit with a Nehru jacket and a pale pink lawn shirt with a high Edwardian collar, ruffled at the edge and around the wrists.

"I was early in the men's fashion revolution," he says. In 1965 he was already wearing long hair and a turtle neck shirt with his dinner clothes. Both he and his wife Sara, who was once a model, already think that beads and chains are a little passé.

The farthest-out thing a man can wear nowadays is a cat-tan, he says. "I own two . . . I wore one to a Los Angeles supermarket the other day, and I must say people looked at me strangely."

The cape and hat he arrived in he regards as fun but slightly p.o.n.y. For sitting around his suite at the Plaza and warming up his guitar, he puts on blond wool slacks, snug as blue jeans with a pleat down each side, and a ruffled white shirt from Paraphernalia. The slacks are part of three suits Brioni made for him in Rome. The very blond leather shoes come from Brioni, too. He picks up most of his clothes, though, at DeVos, in Hollywood.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Is there any place in this world for a dumb nurse? I am a sophomore at Crescenta Valley High School in California and I've had terrible trouble with math ever since I was in the ninth grade.

Is it absolutely necessary for future nurses to take algebra, geometry and chemistry? If so, why? I have wanted to be a nurse ever since I was five years old. It will break my heart if I don't make it. I will bless you till the end of my days if you come up with a solution. Thank you. — DEDICATED GIRL WHO WANTS TO SERVE

Dear Girl: You don't say how dumb you are in math, but I hope you are not flunking. You need a high school diploma if you plan to be an R.N.

Every nurse must have some knowledge of math because math is the basis for all chemistry. Nurses must administer medicine and it is vital that they be able to calculate doses accurately.

If you have a mental block on math, you cannot be an R.N. but you can be a licensed practical nurse. This is extremely rewarding work and I highly recommend it.

Some Justice

Dear Ann Landers: Is there a rule that says a single daughter owes her mother more than a married daughter? I have been stuck with my mother and I use the word "stuck" because I can't think of a word that fits the situation better.

My mother is 40 years older than I am and we argue all the time. Everything I say and do irritates her and she feels it is mutual. We live in a tiny apartment and fall all over each other. I hate to come home from work.

I have two sisters who are married and live in another state. They send jointly a plant at Easter, a gift at Christmas and a box of candy on Mother's Day. They come to visit once a year, for five days, and stay in a hotel. They have never visited Mother to visit them and once when she suggested it they told her they didn't think she could stand the trip.

What do you think of this set-up? — NO SIGNATURE PLEASE

Dear No: I think it is shameful. Your sisters should contribute every month toward your mother's living expenses. Moreover, they should relieve you twice a year by insisting that your mother visit them — or they should stay with your mother for a week or two while you take a vacation.

Someone, perhaps a clergyman, should help you get some justice. Get going.

AMHERST, N.S. — Robert Ripley, circulation manager for the Amherst News, is well known to drive on Nova Scotia highways.

So far he has received five permits for his car, and four chauffeur's licences for himself, not to mention three other envelopes he returned unopened to the provincial motor vehicle registrar in Halifax.

The highways department blames it on persistent trouble with a new computer that issues licence renewals.

Fight for Francs Won't, Won't Can-Can

PARIS (UPI) — Strippers at the 100-year-old Folies Bergere, the epitome of "gay Paris," this week are knitting clothes instead of taking them off.

There has been no can-can at the folies since Monday as its 60 performers participate in France's nationwide strike. Each day the girls sink into the $13 red velvet seats on the front row and knit.

The more than 200 workmen at the folies are protesting wages and working conditions. The workmen are asking a 30 per cent wage increase. The dancers want that plus more showings. They say they have only two for 60 performers, and stripping is warm work.

Acoustics Experts Shake Staid Hotel

OTTAWA (CP) — Acoustics experts rocked the usually staid Chateau Laurier hotel to the very tips of its copper-plated turrets Thursday as they took a verbal and musical look at the future of rock 'n' roll and electronic music.

Speakers at the Acoustical Society of America convention reinforced their points with full-volume tape recordings of musical groups.

Robert A. Moog of Trumansburg, N.Y., said high-volume, electronically-amplified music is here to stay. The younger generation, conditioned from birth to electronic media, finds it as natural as breathing.

Nevertheless, it has its hazards. He had heard figures in the range of 20 per cent of musicians going deaf, or suffering hearing loss of up to 50 per cent after a few years of performing.

Earle L. Kent of Elkhart, Ind., said indiscriminate amplification, particularly by small-town groups who don't realize what they are doing, reach the threshold of pain.

"Noise levels measured at a teen-age dance in Elkhart showed a level of 115 decibels nine feet from the playing combo. This is more than 10 times the level considered hazardous in industrial plants."

DAMAGE POINT
"The kids were told they were going to damage their hearing. They didn't turn it down. I guess they thought medicine would take care of them."

LIABLE TO ACTION
Kent said: "I've been warning musicians that if they're not worried about their own hearing they might be liable to damage actions by their audiences. After all, the courts now are ruling on suits resulting from hearing damage at work."

Mr. Moog said future live performances will have one "musical" occupied with nothing more than manipulating the sounds produced by his band colleagues.

FOR YEARS
In "avant garde" circles this has been done for years and has been carried to the point where two players are controlling the sound output of each other, "introducing a kind of game element."

In the recording studio, it was possible that the musician will disappear altogether and the sounds he electronically produced, will be manipulated, put together and recorded for marketing.

Americans Held, 1,000 LSD Pills Found

Ball was set at $10,000 each Thursday for two Americans held after RCMP officers seized an estimated $6,000 worth of LSD in an Esquimalt raid.

In asking for the setting of a substantial bail, special prose-

Arrested on a joint charge of possessing LSD for sale were Harold W. Wood, 25, of Seattle and Ivors Zarins, 29, of Santa Rosa, Calif.

The two, granted permission by Magistrate William Oulter to make application for legal aid, were remanded to May 31.

Mr. Taylor told the court 1,000 capsules of LSD had been seized by police.

According to RCMP narcotics officers, the current sale price is about $6 a capsule.

The accused were reported to have come to Victoria last Saturday.

Jaycee Chief

Foster Parents Warned

By DIANE JANOWSKI

Some children will become delinquent despite any attempts by parents to prevent it, foster parents were told Wednesday night.

The fifth annual meeting of the Victoria Foster Parent Association was addressed by Dr. Pamela Duncan, who has had several years experience with delinquent children. She is currently lecturing in developmental psychology at the University of Victoria.

"No matter how disillusioned we ourselves are," she said, "it is most important that we help our children to keep their idealism and enthusiasm."

She said she spoke "as a human being who has read a lot and had much experience, instead of as a psychologist with an expert's answer for everything."

USE OWN JUDGMENT

Assisted by taped comments from three parents who are associated with professional psychology, she told the audience of 40 that "whenever there is a clash between a theory and your own common sense, rely on yourself."

The association approved a constitutional amendment making its aims apply to all children instead of restricting the group's benefits to foster children.

It also approved a bylaw whereby any foster parents who have given up fostering may retain active membership in the association.

Mrs. Noreen Utley, 7415 Tomlinson Road, was acclaimed president for a second consecutive term. Mrs. Utley cares for seven children, of whom three are adopted, two are foster, and one is a legal ward.

Other officers elected were Lloyd Melder, vice-president; Mrs. Annette Walker, second vice-president; Mrs. Dorothy Kennedy, treasurer; Mrs. Audrey Price, recording secretary; Mrs. Irene Ash, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Judith Bohet, co-ordinator of neighborhood chairmen; Gordon Phillips, publicity director, and Mrs. Davida Givvin, librarian.

Veterans' Reunion Saturday

On May 23, 1916, the 88th Battalion of the Canadian Expeditionary Force sailed from Victoria for overseas.

Some never returned. But 40 of those who did will meet at 6:30 p.m. Saturday for a reunion in the Strathcona Hotel.

About 35 veterans are expected to turn out for the meeting, out of 68 who were notified, according to George Dyson, secretary-treasurer of the First World War battalion.

The meeting will be chaired by Tom Brewer, and among the speakers will be the battalion's original adjutant, Major Ben Harrison of Nanaimo.

Use this new formula mix

Here's the easy way to give your lawn the care it needs — a new product that's both an excellent fertilizer and high potency weed killer. Green Valley 20-10-5 Hi-Light Feed and Weed contains urea formaldehyde, the slow-release nutrient that provides long-term nourishment for your lawn... plus Kill'em, a special herbicide formula that controls hard-to-kill chickweed and clover, as well as dandelions and other lawn weeds. Comes in a light, easy handling bag. Provides excellent coverage. For best results, apply Green Valley 20-10-5 Hi-Light 3 times yearly — starting now.

(covers 5000 sq. ft. of lawn)

Bylaw Weighed On Hucksters

By A. M. MURPHY

Another in the multitude of City Hall meetings on Causeway huckstering ended Thursday on an indecisive note.

Traffic, licensing, police, administrative officials and aldermen, all under the chairmanship of Ald. Hugh Ramsay, decided to look into the possibility of a bylaw to forbid distribution of free, commercial literature on the Causeway in the hope of cutting down on the pestering of tourists.

A the same time, bus tour operators will be called in and told to work out a placement plan on the newly widened portion of Government Street.

In a report to the special council committee, one bus operator suggested that it was local people who were complaining of huckstering, rather than tourists. A survey carried out by the bus company found that only one tourist complaint had been made, he said.

City Manager Dennis Young said the tour buses presented no traffic hazard. He added that operators felt they were adding to the summer economy of the city, providing a service and giving employment to students. They were, furthermore, willing to abide by any reasonable code of regulations set up by the city.

Election Postpones Incorporation Vote

An incorporation vote for Colwood, Langford and Metochia, originally scheduled for midsummer, has been postponed until later in the year because of the impending federal election.

Grit's Debate Call Answered by Tory

George Chatterton, Esquimalt-Saanich Conservative candidate in the coming federal election, says he is willing to debate "any time, anywhere" with Liberal challenger David Anderson.

On Wednesday, Mr. Anderson invited Mr. Chatterton to meet him publicly to discuss national unity and the issue of special status for Quebec.

Mr. Chatterton accepted the challenge Thursday, saying he would accept existing commitments to meet Mr. Anderson. No time or place has been set.

VICTORIA HIGH
However, the two will probably have their meeting at 7 p.m. Tuesday at an all-candidates forum in Victoria High School.

In a prepared statement, Mr. Chatterton accused Mr. Anderson of trying to distract the people's attention from "the mess this government has led this country into."

"Is he aware that since this government took office in 1963, the purchasing power of the dollar has dropped by 17 cents?" Mr. Chatterton asked.

SHIPYARD POINT
"Does he know that under this government the employment in our shipyards has plummeted from 2,500 to 400 men, and that Fairview Aviation has closed down?"

"More than 1,000 elderly people in Greater Victoria are in desperate need of proper accommodation, and young couples here, as in every part of Canada, cannot afford to buy a house under NHIA," said Mr. Chatterton.

"Thousands of retired civil servants are living on pensions being eroded by inflation, he charged.

Trudeau Here June 2, Stanfield June 13

Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau will open his B.C. campaign for the Liberals in Memorial Arena here June 2. He will be followed by Conservative leader Robert Stanfield on June 13.

Liberal party workers had called a press conference for 10 a.m. today to make the announcement, but a Vancouver party spokesman beat them to the punch.

Grit candidates David Groos and David Anderson are expected to make statements of the probable impact of their leader's visit anyway.

One Liberal said he had known for three weeks that Mr. Trudeau was heading here, but both parties had been waiting to see who would make the first move.

Arena manager Jack Morgan has been evading

questions on political bookings for weeks, and would only say he had dates open between June 1 and 13.

He added that none of the parties had confirmed a booking date.

As soon as the Liberal announcement was made, Conservatives Eric Charman and George Chatterton announced that Mr. Stanfield would be in Victoria for a Memorial Arena rally June 13.

No detailed plans have been announced for the visit of either leader.

Assistant manager of the arena, John Bate, said the building could hold as many as 8,000 people, and loudspeakers could be set up in the parking lot to accommodate any overflow.

Liberal Ian Stewart said Thursday, "We expect at least a capacity crowd. We are going to fill the building. We are determined that all the technical things will be in perfect order and will have a professional engineer on hand to see that the sound system is in top shape."

As soon as his meeting is over, Mr. Trudeau will fly to Penticton and spend the following day campaigning through the interior. He will be back later in June to assist Liberal candidates on the Lower Mainland.

Paris Riots Roar On, Border Tested Today

Police Threaten To Join Strikers

PARIS (CP)—Rioting students battled police in the fire-ridden streets of Left-Bank Paris Thursday night as France's strike-caused crisis continued to flare.

The Latin Quarter was in a state of siege as police chased young rioters through the streets, firing tear gas and brandishing huge anti-riot shields.

Within earshot of the famous Notre Dame cathedral, police trucks fired columns of water at the students who built makeshift barricades and set fire to piles of uncollected garbage.

Seine Bridges Closed

Through the smoke-laden air, students angrily opposed to President de Gaulle, flitted from one corner to another with the police in constant pursuit.

The young demonstrators extinguished street lights but the night was illuminated by the smoky fires which left the normally picturesque boulevards something of a shambles.

Meanwhile, Paris police warned they could not be relied on to act against strikers or serve a regime which failed to respect democratic institutions. In an outspoken communique, unions representing uniformed Paris police said they hoped the government "would not systematically pit policemen against workers fighting for their rights."

If the government failed, the unions "would feel justified in considering the execution of some of their missions as so many questions of conscience."

AIR TENSE

In other parts of the Latin Quarter, students and tourists milled around and the atmosphere was tense. Meanwhile, changes in the Gaullist cabinet and moves toward social reform were reported imminent but mass strikes were expected to continue until at least Sunday.

A battle developed near the St. Michel Bridge over the River Seine in the wake of a cabinet meeting at which President de Gaulle conferred with his ministers on his plans for dealing with the strike crisis, the gravest of his 10-year-old regime.

De Gaulle is to address the nation in a radio television broadcast at noon PDT today and is expected to announce the decisions at that time. There was no public hint in advance of what he intends to propose.

Students marched toward the St. Michel Bridge from the Latin Quarter, but were forced

Germans Plan 'Invasion'

FRANKFURT (CP-Reuters)—West German left-wing students said Thursday they will march across the French border today with Daniel Cohn-Bendit, a leader of Paris demonstrations who has been barred from re-entering France.

Cohn-Bendit, 23, a West German, was barred from France Wednesday after flying to Amsterdam, The Netherlands.

The West German Students League announced the march after Cohn-Bendit, known as Danny the Red, arrived here from Amsterdam.

The league said there would be a demonstration today at the University of Saarbrücken, near the French border, and then West German and French students would attempt to cross into France.

POSTS ALEERT

At least 1,000 students were expected to escort Cohn-Bendit in his effort to cross the border.

Cohn-Bendit, who says his aim is the complete overthrow of French society, was born in France but now has West German nationality.

Posts along the French border have been put on alert to watch for Cohn-Bendit.

Cohn-Bendit told a students meeting in Amsterdam Wednesday night he would go back to France within two or three weeks "to continue the struggle against capitalism and the de Gaulle government."

CALL TO CONVERGE

Meanwhile, Belgian students occupying Brussels University called on the people of Belgium to converge on the campus to give them support.

They asked students, teachers and others who were concerned to renounce their Ascension Day public holiday, leave their homes, even in the provinces—and "to come to the university."

About 500 young persons calling themselves The Free Assembly of the 12,000-student university said in a statement they no longer recognize the authority of the university's governing council and are replacing it by a "democratic body elected by the assembly of the university community."

275,000 Acres Burning

Hundreds Flee Alberta Forest Fires

EDMONTON (CP) — The town of Slave Lake, on the southeastern tip of Lesser Slave Lake, was being threatened by a forest fire which had already caused the evacuation of about 800 persons from communities farther along the shore of the lake, 190 miles north of Edmonton.

The fire Thursday night was burning about six miles from Slave Lake at 11:20 p.m. PST. Slave Lake was one of two communities which received the people evacuated from the lakeshore settlements of Widewater, Canyon Creek and Faust. The other was Kinno.

A bulletin was broadcast from all radio and television stations in the Edmonton area at 10:30 p.m. PST, and 50 minutes later, word was received that the evacuation had been completed.

The department reported 116 fires burning, 19 out of control and nine under partial control.

An estimated 275,000 acres was classified on fire in the province although forest fires do not necessarily burn over whole areas or do not actively burn all at once.

The Lesser Slave Lake area was hardest hit.

Smoke from some of the fires could be seen clearly from Edmonton. The late afternoon sun was blood red and the acrid odor of smoke tainted the air downtown. The fire closest to Edmonton was a small one near Stoney Plain, 20 miles west.

Fighting the fires is a force of 4,000 men, including 3,200 on the lines with the rest doing supply duty. Also in use are 300 bulldozers and more than 100 aircraft, including water bombers contributed by four provinces besides Alberta.

The weather forecast gave little hope of immediate relief. The central part of Alberta is to remain hot and dry with the northern section to become warmer.

The Rocky Mountain House-Clearwater district is the other major forest suffering from the outbreak, one of the worst in history. There are 39 fires burning there including a 20,000-acre blaze near Buck Lake, 75 miles southwest of Edmonton.

Yo Ho Ho

GLACEBAY, N.S. (CP) — Lobster fisherman Steve MacDonald hauled in a potent catch Thursday morning—155 gallons of rum.

The rum, in three 45-gallon drums stamped Bordeaux, France, was taken to the local RCMP detachment, which will try to locate the owner. Police speculate the drums fell off a passing ship.

If the owner can not be found, the rum will be poured down the drain.

Subway Bomber Hunted

TORONTO (CP) — Deputy Police Chief John Murray said Thursday at least one person in Toronto knows the "mad bomber" of the subway and sp-

pealed for information before someone is killed.

He said he does not believe the bomber deliberately intends to injure or kill people, but this could happen if he carries out threats of further subway violence in an attempt to extort $250,000.

Four to five sticks of dynamite exploded in a subway station washroom and a bus station waiting room Wednesday night after a week of threats against the life of Ralph Day, chairman of the Toronto Transit Commission. Day and his family are under police guard.

Murray said after a two-hour meeting between district police supervisors and the TTC Thursday there is a possibility there are two bombers. In his telephone threats to Day the man used both "T" and "tee."

D. F. Hamilton, a member of the TTC, said police have a tape-recording of the "calculating, cold-blooded voice" of the bomber.

FIRST THREAT

All TTC property has been placed under 24-hour surveillance by 300 policemen.

The first telephone threat was received May 15 when the bomber mentioned two dynamite blasts that had occurred less than 24 hours before.

The caller asked Day for $250,000 and told him to take it to a downtown telephone booth at Yonge and Bloor Streets where he would find instructions. Nothing was found in the booth.

Big Quake Rocks All New Zealand

WELLINGTON (Reuters-AP) — A strong earthquake rocked most of New Zealand early today, causing serious damage and injury on the South Island's west coast.

At least one person, a woman, was missing and 15 people reported injured by the tremor, which reached a strength of 6.5 on the Richter scale.

A government seismological observatory spokesman in Wellington said its epicentre was north of the South Island town of Westport.

The quake was felt from Invercargill on the southern tip of the South Island to Whangarei, in the north of the North Island, 800 miles away.

INTO GORGE

The earthquake struck the town of Inangahua on the South Island, tumbling at least one house into a gorge.

Landslides cut the town's roads and rescue parties went there by helicopter.

In the Westland area, a bridge on a main road was displaced. In another bridge incident, a man was injured when his car hit the sides as the quake struck.

Greymouth looked like a disaster area. Nearly all windows in the shopping area were caved in and shop verandahs torn from buildings.

Mystery 'Sniper' Pins 60 Policemen

HOUSTON (UPI) — A short circuit with an unlimited supply of "ammunition" fought off more than 80 policemen along the Houston ship channel early Thursday. It was finally subdued by a fearless electrician.

Plainclothes and uniformed police, creeping around chemical tanks in the giant industrial complex on the channel, spent the pre-dawn

hours chasing what they thought was someone peppering them with gunfire from atop one of the tanks.

One policeman said he was shot in the heel of the shoe. Another graphically described slugs slamming into a road paved with oyster shells. Police threw themselves to the ground with each loud crack.

The ricocheting of the bullets was clearly audible in the maze of tanks. The threat of an explosion was a distinct possibility.

Fire trucks stood ready and police lobbed tear gas bombs into spots where they thought a sniper was hiding.

"He has been firing at virtually anything that moves," said Harris county deputy sheriff H. C. Gregory. Police Chief Herman Short finally ordered his men pulled back away from the channel to await better light before flushing the villain out of his lair.

But their services were not needed again.

In the first shadowy light of dawn, two sheriff's deputies and four gunshy newsmen, came upon the culprit hiding in a one-inch piece of pipe.

The "shots" were nothing more than the popping noise produced by water dripping through an opening into a conduit pipe, seeping through insulation tape and shorting out a piece of No. 8 electrical wire.

"I just goofed," said electrician R. A. Graves, who was called onto silence the wire. He said he forgot to put a plate on the outside of the pipe which keeps the wire inside waterproof.

Arena

Work Nears Finish

CHEMAINUS—Minor hockey players will begin their bid to recapture the glory of early hockey days this fall as they skin across the Olympic-size ice sheet in the Fuller's Lake Arena.

Secretary Carey Adams of the Cowichan Valley Minor Hockey Association, said a group of engineers at the Crofton pulp mill has decided to sponsor one of the 22 teams. It will be named the Smoke Eaters.

Mr. Adams recalled the Trail Smoke Eaters of 1937-38.

"They were the gashouse gang from the West Kootenays who won the Allan Cup, emblematic of amateur hockey in Canada, and then went on to win the world title in Europe."

Mill Plan

Mr. Adams said each boy is sponsored individually by the recovery engineers at the Crofton mill.

"Self-appointed business manager is Harold McKechnie of 438 Festubert Street, who talked it up and had the recovery men dig into their pockets and come up with a two-year sponsorship."

However, before the young Smoke Eaters and other boys learn the skill of mastering the ice, 500 people are expected to see and hear several hockey games at the Sportsmen's Dinner, July 6, at the arena.

Arena Skates Ahead To Opening in Fall

Ice Has Firm Start With Lots of Sand

CHEMAINUS—Sand, sand and more sand.

That has been the scene at the $430,000 Fuller's Lake ice skating arena. About 300 truck loads of sand have been dumped inside the arena in preparation for installation of refrigeration pipes and the final cement slab which will be covered with ice this fall.

Imbedded in the sand fill are three miles of heating wires which will prevent ground frost from damaging the cement base.

Terry English of Cowichan Construction, site superintendent, said on Thursday that a total length of 10 miles of refrigeration pipe will be laid.

While carpenters and other tradesmen finish the inside of the largest building in the North Cowichan municipality, workers from Victoria are finishing their job of covering 36,000 square feet of roof mounted on huge laminated beams.

Mr. English said completion date is early July.

Crew from Victoria firm, Universal Sheet Metal, put last layer of roofing on Fuller's Lake arena at Chemainus. It is expected that building will be ready by fall for first minor hockey games.—(Klaus Muentner)

Ney Eyes 'Lost' Mud Flats

NANAIMO — Mayor Frank Ney Tuesday outlined plans for a $1,000,000 dredging operation to revitalize the waterfront.

He said that Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell is being contacted to determine if the project can be undertaken as a local improvement by owners of waterfront property.

Mr. Ney said he hopes the dredging could reclaim present mud flat areas for commercial and industrial use.

At the same time, he added, a waterfront promenade already under construction should be finished within two months. He envisaged an extended boardwalk between Georgia Park and Harbor Park which would eventually make Nanaimo one of the most exciting waterfronts of the coast.

Sportsman Dies at 25

DUNCAN — William Franklin Clark, 25, of Duncan died here suddenly. He was born at Prince Albert, Sask., and was educated at Duncan elementary and Cowichan high school.

For the past few years he worked as a logger.

Mr. Clark was an active sportsman and was particularly interested in softball.

He was also a keen hunter and fisherman.

Mr. Clark was a member of the IWA.

Funeral services will be held at First Funeral Chapel, Saturday, interment will be at St. Mary's Anglican Church cemetery, Soanemo.

Grade 10 Level Planned

Adult Class Goes Up

DUNCAN — An upgrading course, to Grade 10 level, is planned this fall by officials of the Duncan adult education department and Canada Manpower.

Adult Education Director Robert Thorburn said: "At a recent meeting we explored the possibility of evening and Saturday classes for adults in the Cowichan Valley region."

He outlined a proposal for upgrading classes for adults requiring the training to get jobs, to improve their present occupation or to go on to higher academic levels.

"There is an increasing response for offerings of this kind of training in the school district's adult education division, but many potential students are deterred by the rather high cost of fees involved."

Mr. Thorburn said that during the meeting the possibility of Canada Manpower offering financial assistance to needy students was discussed. Norman Bonford of the Duncan office of Canada Manpower was enthusiastic.

He said the large number of applications showed the need for Canada Manpower's participation in that type of training.

Mr. Thorburn said: "Mr. Bonford pointed out that the Duncan office must find evidence of this need through applicants directly requesting assistance from the office."

"The office would then be in a strong position to recommend support of the program to the Pacific Region Manpower training specialist at Vancouver who in turn would request approval from the provincial government to go ahead with the scheme."

Mr. Bonford said if approval was received, his office would purchase spaces in the courses for approved students and pay their fees.

Mr. Thorburn said the adult education division would hire and pay the teachers and provide classrooms.

"Students not eligible or in need of the assistance will have to pay their own fee."

"We hope people in the area will not hesitate and make application for help."

Big Bill Faces Water Board

NANAIMO — Proposed extension of water services in Nanaimo has resulted in a budget estimate of $2,000,000 for the water and sewage board.

Commissioner A. W. MacDonald told members Thursday that the amount would cover North Reservoir revision and unexpected costs.

He said it would mean a $24 a year fee for each connection but it would be reduced to $17 by 1975 when expected connections were expected to reach 10,942 as against the present 7,776.

The meeting was told that Nanaimo water is generally "good to excellent."

Mr. MacDonald said summer and fall complaints of bad taste and odor could be corrected by flushing lines, chlorination and a general cleanup.

Consumption last year was 1,366,932,000 gallons. The 1967 costs were $240,000, said Mr. MacDonald.

Other figures in his report indicated that Nanaimo is 12 years ahead of its time in water consumption — the three months summer consumption expected for 1960 of 700,000,000 was almost reached with 566,000,000 last year.

Mr. MacDonald urged an education program for the public stressing use of water and how to avoid waste.

"The end result could be no sprinkling restriction this year," he said.

Another reservoir near Westwood Lake is planned and the North Reservoir will be dredged to increase its 8,000,000 gallon capacity to 13,000,000.

A 76,000-foot trunk line is proposed to connect the Harwood area to the Westwood area reservoir which in turn will be connected to the North Reservoir, thereby including another 20,000,000 gallons for storage, said Mr. MacDonald.

Mr. MacDonald pointed out that the trunk line would then provide an emergency water delivery in the event of damage or water stoppage in the main line.

Three checks in metered areas in the water district showed per capita use of 82 gallons a day; while in similar non-metered areas showed a use of 150 gallons, 107 gallons, and 120 gallons a day.

He said a meeting with pollution control officials resulted in the district being assured that treatment would not be required for some years. However, investigation had shown that $3,000,000 might be needed for two out falls. Annual operating costs would be $100,000.

Mr. MacDonald said if further development continues in northern areas, sewer collection systems would be required.

William Atkinson, secretary-treasurer, said the board's 1967 audit report showed expenditures at $258,699. There was a revenue of $267,004. The $11,605 over-spending was mainly caused by a B.C. Research Council investigation of water purity which cost $9,840.

The remaining $1,800 over-spending was for materials and construction work.

Portable Classroom Demanded

Transfer Scheme Angers Parents

CAMPBELL RIVER — A petition, which calls for a portable classroom at Pinecrest school and object strongly to a proposed pupil transfer to other schools, has been presented to Campbell River school board.

Sixteen parents went to a board meeting when their spokesman, Harold Neumann presented the petition which was signed by parents of all the 187 students attending Pinecrest.

Mr. Neumann said the teacher-student ratio was higher in Pinecrest than in any other area elementary school. It was unreasonable to transfer children to other schools just to relieve that ratio.

Board chairman Bruce Saunders replied: "If in our opinion Pinecrest, or any other school, needs a portable or anything else, that school will get it."

"We are no less interested in the children of Pinecrest school than any other school. All I can do is commit the board to doing the right thing."

Mr. Neumann said the board has assigned two portable classrooms to the senior secondary school following a request by the principal John Young.

"If you can set a precedent of assigning a portable to one school on the request of the principal, then you can do the same for any principal," he said.

Prospector Walks Back

CAMPBELL RIVER — A prospector, reported missing in the Schoen Lake area Tuesday made his way back to safety Wednesday.

Floyd Sage, of Vancouver, walked west until he came to the Port Hardy Road, and was picked up. He was reported found by the nearby camp of Canada Forest Products.

He had become separated from a companion the day before, and a search was instigated.

Mr. Saunders said the main cause of the trouble was the board was trying to maintain a lower classroom ratio than the department of education standards.

He said the departmental capacity of Pinecrest was 214, ten above the projected student enrolment for 1968-69.

"We can solve ... our problems by accepting departmental standards ... move students or rent portables."

A motion to rent portable classrooms was tabled until June 4.

There was also heated debate about kindergartens which have been urged by trustee Peter Lauren.

Other board members are doubtful about their value. Trustees feel that any advantage gained by children had gone by the time they were in Grade 3.

Mr. Lauren said there were two operating in the school district and he felt that all children should have the opportunity of attending kindergarten.

It was pointed out that the two were pilot projects to see if children in areas where parents had low education standards would benefit from a head start.

The matter was tabled to enable trustees to obtain more information.

The board is taking first steps in obtaining federal aid for educational TV programming.

Plea Goes To Laing

NANAIMO — An appeal was made to Indian Affairs Minister Arthur Laing who help rescue Oat Tye Day.

Liberal party members told him that Ferries were needed to Newcastle Island otherwise the day might have to be cancelled.

Empire Day celebrations worker Peter Schwane has been trying to organize a ferry for three weeks but has been unsuccessful because of federal regulations.

Man Sought In Killing

ALERT BAY—RCMP were searching today for a man in the killing of a 26-year-old Indian woman whose battered body was found in bushes two days ago.

The body of Caroline Rufus was discovered by children Wednesday a few feet from Cedar Road in the midtown area.

Cause of death has not been determined but police said Thursday the dead woman had a badly bruised face.

"We are treating this as murder," said an RCMP spokesman. "A man is being sought, but we cannot release any names yet."

Miss Rufus, said to have lived with her mother, was last seen in Alert Bay early Sunday morning. Her body is believed to have been concealed in the bushes several days.

Magistrate Refuses Bail Second Time

NANAIMO — Magistrate Eric Winch, for the second time, has refused bail to James Edward William Bilton, 30, of Cedar.

On Tuesday, Magistrate Winch refused bail on all four charges facing Mr. Bilton, remanding him to Thursday without either bail or plea.

On Thursday, Mr. Bilton pleaded not guilty to both driving while prohibited, May 19, and to assault causing bodily harm May 11.

He was remanded in custody to June 24. This is the same date set for his preliminary trial, charged with threatening to cause the death of James Martin Thomas Fridge May 19.

He also faces a fourth charge: possession of a dangerous weapon, May 19, on which he refused to elect the court in which to be tried. Magistrate Winch ruled it would be before judge and jury.

They Say It In Coffee

LAKE COWICHAN — A coffee party sponsored by the Lake Cowichan branch of the Canadian Mental Health Association, had a dual purpose.

Branch president, Mrs. K. R. Mackenzie, of Cayuse, said the event was held to celebrate the 50th anniversary of the association and as a "thank you" to the community following a successful membership campaign.

She stated the branch now has 900 members, one of the highest membership in British Columbia. The group raised about $1,200 during the campaign.

Mrs. Mackenzie said the association was founded in 1909 when, as a school doctor, he became aware of need for an organization to campaign for basic mental hygiene services.

"The first branch in B.C. was established in 1952," she said. "Today there are 26 branches, as well as hundreds of volunteers, working directly with the patients and indirectly to promote improvements in mental health services and increased public education and research."

Mrs. E. A. Clode, a member of both the national and provincial association boards described the great improvements in hospitals for the mentally ill and the advances being made in research.

She complimented the area for being among the most responsive communities in the province. She praised the Lake Cowichan association for its active participation in public programs, donations to research and scholarship funds, aid to the patients in Riverview hospital, and local volunteer services.

WOODS ABLAZE

Hundreds Flee Alberta Fires

EDMONTON (CP)—A forest fire which threatened Slave Lake early today veered to the west of the town on the southeastern tip of Lesser Slave Lake, 190 miles north of Edmonton.

The fire, moving roughly northward, raced 42 miles in 11 hours to threaten the town of 2,000.

Late Thursday night, the fire was within six miles of the town and shortly after midnight was within 2 1/2 miles.

Slave Lake Mayor Leo Bolavert said in a telephone interview that at midnight the fire was veering westward.

Fighting the fires is a force of 4,000 men, including 3,200 on the lines with the rest doing supply duty. Also in use are 300 bulldozers and more than 100 aircraft, including water bombers contributed by four provinces besides Alberta.

The weather forecast gave little hope of immediate relief. The central part of Alberta is to remain hot and dry with the northern section to become warmer.

The Rocky Mountain House-Clearwater district is the other major forest suffering from the outbreak, one of the worst in history. There are 39 fires burning there including a 20,000 acre blaze near Buck Lake, 75 miles southwest of Edmonton.

Yo Ho Ho

GLACEBAY, N.S. (CP)—Lobster fisherman Steve MacDonald hauled in a potent catch Thursday morning—135 gallons of rum.

The rum, in three 45-gallon drums, was found in a small, unmarked boat, which was taken to the local RCMP detachment, which will try to locate the owner. Police speculate the drums fell off a passing ship.

If the owner can not be found, the rum will be poured down the drain.

Police Threaten To Join French Strikers

PARIS (CP)—Rioting students battled police in the fire-ridden streets of Left-Bank Paris Thursday night as France's strike-caused crisis continued to flare.

The Latin Quarter was in a state of siege as police chased young rioters through the streets, firing tear gas and brandishing huge anti-riot shields.

Within earshot of the famous Notre Dame cathedral, police trucks fired columns of water at the students who built makeshift barricades and set fire to piles of uncollected garbage.

Seine Bridges Closed

Through the smoke-laden air, students, angrily opposed to President de Gaulle, flitted from one corner to another with the police in constant pursuit.

The young demonstrators extinguished street lights but the night was illuminated by the smoky fires which left the normally picturesque boulevards something of a shambles.

Meanwhile, Paris police warned they could not be relied on to act against strikers or serve a regime which failed to respect democratic institutions.

In an outspoken communique, unions representing uniformed Paris police said they hoped the government "would not systematically pit policemen against workers fighting for their rights."

If the government failed, the unions "would feel justified in considering the execution of some of their missions as so many questions of conscience."

Meanwhile, changes in the Gaullist cabinet and moves toward social reform were reported imminent but mass strikes were expected to continue until at least Sunday.

A battle developed near the St. Michel Bridge over the River Seine in the wake of a cabinet meeting at which President de Gaulle conferred with his ministers on his plans for dealing with the strike crisis, the gravest of his 10-year-old regime.

De Gaulle is to address the nation in a radio television broadcast at noon PDT today and is expected to announce the decisions at that time. There was no public hint in advance of what he intends to propose.

Germans Plan 'Invasion'

FRANKFURT (CP-Reuters)—West German left-wing students said Thursday they will march across the French border today with Daniel Cohn-Bendit, a leader of Paris demonstrations who has been barred from re-entering France.

Cohn-Bendit, 33, a West German, was barred from France Wednesday after flying to Amsterdam, The Netherlands.

The West German Students League announced the march after Cohn-Bendit, known as Danny the Red, arrived here from Amsterdam.

The league said there would be a demonstration today at the University of Saarbrücken, near the French border, and then West German and French students would attempt to cross into France.

POSTS ALERTED

At least 1,000 students were expected to escort Cohn-Bendit in his effort to cross the border. Cohn-Bendit, who says his aim is the complete overthrow of French society, was born in France but now has West German nationality.

Posts along the French border have been put on alert to watch for Cohn-Bendit.

Cohn-Bendit told a students meeting in Amsterdam Wednesday night he would go back to France within two or three weeks "to continue the struggle against capitalism and the de Gaulle government."

CALL TO CONVERGE

Meanwhile, Belgian students occupying Brussels University called on the people of Belgium to converge on the campus to give them support.

They asked students, teachers and others who were concerned to renounce their Ascension Day public holiday, leave their homes, even in the provinces—and "to come to the university."

About 500 young persons calling themselves The Free Assembly of the 12,000-student university said in a statement they no longer recognize the authority of the university's governing council and are replacing it by a "democratic body elected by the assembly of the university community."

Blasts Back Toronto Extortion Threats

Subway Bomber Hunted

TORONTO (CP)—Deputy Police Chief John Murray said Thursday at least one person in Toronto knows the "mad bomber" of the subway and appealed for information before someone is killed.

He said he does not believe the bomber deliberately intends to injure or kill people, but this could happen if he carries out threats of further subway violence in an attempt to extort $250,000.

Four to five sticks of dynamite exploded in a subway station washroom and a bus station waiting room Wednesday night after a week of threats against the life of Ralph Day, chairman of the Toronto Transit Commission. Day and his family are under police guard.

Murray said after a two-hour meeting between district police supervisors and the TTC Thursday there is a possibility there are two bombers. In his telephone threats to Day the man used both "I" and "we."

D. F. Hamilton, a member of the TTC, said police have a tape-recording of the "calculating, cold-blooded voice" of the bomber.

FIRST THREAT

All TTC property has been placed under 24-hour surveillance by 300 policemen.

The first telephone threat was received May 15 when the bomber mentioned two dynamite blasts that had occurred less than 24 hours before.

The caller asked Day for $250,000 and told him to take it to a downtown telephone booth at Yonge and Bloor Streets where he would find instructions. Nothing was found in the booth.

One policeman said he was shot in the heel of the shoe. Another graphically described slugs slamming into a road paved with oyster shells.

Police threw themselves to the ground with each loud crack.

The ricocheting of the bullets was clearly audible in the maze of tanks. The threat of an explosion was a distinct possibility.

Fire trucks stood ready and police lobbed tear gas bombs into spots where they thought a sniper was hiding.

In the first shadowy light of dawn, two sheriff's deputies and four gunshy newsmen, came upon the culprit hiding in a one-inch piece of pipe.

Big Quake Rocks All New Zealand

WELLINGTON (Reuters-AP)—A strong earthquake rocked most of New Zealand early today, causing serious damage and injury on the South Island's west coast.

At least one person, a woman, was missing and 15 people reported injured by the tremor, which reached a strength of 6.5 on the Richter scale.

A government seismological observatory spokesman in Wellington said its epicentre was north of the South Island town of Westport.

The quake was felt from Invercargill on the southern tip of the South Island to Whangarei, in the north of the North Island, 800 miles away.

The earthquake struck the town of Inangahua on the South Island, tumbling at least one house into a gorge.

Landslides cut the town's roads and rescue parties went there by helicopter.

In the Westland area, a bridge on a main road was displaced. In another bridge incident, a man was injured when his car hit the sides as the quake struck.

Greymouth looked like a disaster area. Nearly all windows in the shopping areas were caved in and shop verandahs torn from buildings.

Mystery 'Sniper' Pins 60 Policemen

HOUSTON (UPI)—A short circuit with an unlimited supply of "ammunition" fought off more than 60 policemen along the Houston ship channel early Thursday. It was finally subdued by a fearless electrician.

Plainclothes and uniformed police, creeping around chemical tanks in the giant industrial complex on the channel, spent the pre-dawn hours chasing what they thought was someone peppering them with gunfire from atop one of the tanks.

One policeman said he was shot in the heel of the shoe. Another graphically described slugs slamming into a road paved with oyster shells.

Police threw themselves to the ground with each loud crack.

The ricocheting of the bullets was clearly audible in the maze of tanks. The threat of an explosion was a distinct possibility.

Fire trucks stood ready and police lobbed tear gas bombs into spots where they thought a sniper was hiding.

In the first shadowy light of dawn, two sheriff's deputies and four gunshy newsmen, came upon the culprit hiding in a one-inch piece of pipe.

The "shots" were nothing more than the popping noise produced by water dripping through an opening into a conduit pipe, seeping through insulation tape and shorting out a piece of No. 8 electrical wire.

"I just gooted," said electrician R. A. Graves, who was called on to silence the wire. He said he forgot to put a plate on the outside of the pipe which keeps the wire inside waterproof.

BULLETIN

QUEBEC (CP)—An explosion rocked the United States consulate building early today, shattering several windows in the elegant two-story brick structure on Avenue Ste. Genevieve. There were no injuries.
